The Letter

Bonner Scored For Inaction

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative
Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner came under heavy fire in the legislature Wednesday for his failure to lay criminal charges in the case of the phony Premier Bennett letter.

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) said many innocent individuals will remain under suspicion until charges are laid and Mr. Bonner is the only man who can take the necessary action.

"The attorney-general has the case sewed up," said Mr. Harding. "He has the wrong-doer. The confession of a Vancouver man is in his hands. The letter bearing the handwritten signature is at hand."

WITHIN CODE

The case clearly fell within the Criminal Code and provincial jurisdiction, he said.

"I appreciate the interest and sincerity of the member," said Mr. Bonner.

"If I'm called upon to prosecute the case, however, the possibility of seeing that there is a fair trial is not being enhanced by continuation of this discussion at this time."

GOVERNMENT CLEAR

Mr. Harding stressed there were no allegations of wrongdoing on the part of the government in connection with the letter sent to an aide of Prime Minister Pearson on the premier's stationery and purporting to have been signed by W. A. C. Bennett.

The letter is presumed to have been sent in support of millionaire promoter Harry Stonehill's unsuccessful application for landed immigrant status in Canada.

"DISGRACEFUL"

Mr. Harding said the "forged signature of the premier is a disgraceful act" which is based in an attempt to influence federal immigration laws.

"No individual, regardless of his position or party, must ever be permitted to curry favor in this fashion. No one must ever

Communists Picket Their Own Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Communist picketed Communist Wednesday.

Pickets from the Progressive Workers' Movement and the Canada-China Friendship Society paraded past the offices of the Pacific Tribune in protest against the weekly newspaper's refusal to publish an advertisement of a public meeting.

In a statement, the newspaper said a speaker to be featured at the meeting "invariably puts forward the Peking line of division and disruption."

Jacques and Gendarme on run

He Ran for Life— But Did He Win?

DOMPIERRE-LES-EGLISES, France—Jacques Rossignol literally ran for his life here Tuesday—and doesn't know yet whether he won.

Rossignol has pleaded innocent of complicity in the murder of garage owner Raymond Vignaud last Dec. 12.

Investigation fixed the time of death at 7:30 p.m., but Rossignol said when he and two others were arrested that he was in Montmorillon, 32 miles away, at the time.

One defendant said he drove Rossignol to Montmorillon, and left him to go 800 yards on foot to the home of a witness who saw him at 7:55 p.m.

In a re-enactment, a car drove between the two towns in 22 minutes, 15 seconds. Then Rossignol, roped and paced by a policeman, ran the 800 yards in four minutes.

He said this proved his innocence but a magistrate demurred, saying the slaying perhaps occurred 10 minutes before 7:30 p.m.—which would ruin Rossignol's alibi.

A decision is awaited.

Dorion Witness Recalled

Calls 'Forgotten'

OTTAWA (CP) — Testimony show that a call was made July 14 at 11:37 a.m. from Masson's room to federal government number 99-26261.

This is the number listed since 1962 in the defence department telephone directory for the security and administration branch of the RCAF directorate of air intelligence.

Herman Falls, manager of the Chateau, said hotel records

A reporter's call to the number Wednesday brought the reply "air intelligence."

Masson, recalled to the witness box after an interval of three weeks, was not asked by any counsel to say whether he had made the call himself or to explain it.

Mr. Falls testified that the call to 99-26261 was followed immediately by one to 99-23234, the unlisted parliamentary number used by Raymond Desha, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

Purity His Pledge

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Parson pledged Wednesday night that the new Quebec section of the federal Liberal party will be "above moral reproach."

"Personally, I shall tolerate no form of corruption or influence peddling whatever," he said in a speech to the Reform Club.

"The Quebec section of the Liberal Federation of Canada will mirror the image of a party we are all proud of—an honest party for honest citizens."

Ping-Pong War ANSWER RED ATTACKS JETS AGAIN

BULLETIN

DA NANG (Reuters)—About 28 South Vietnamese Skyraider fighter-bombers took off from here today followed shortly by 20 U.S. jet fighters heading north and fully loaded with bombs.

(From AP, Reuters, UPI)

Communist guerrillas attempted an amphibious assault on the port town of Qui Nhon today only hours after Viet Cong suicide squads blew up a U.S. Army barracks housing at least 40 Americans. It was feared that as many as 26 Americans may have died in the blast.

The new attack came as latest figures in the barracks explosion listed three Americans known dead, 17 wounded and 20 to 25 missing.

The attacking guerrillas today, aboard 50 armed junks, were driven back by fire from American helicopters as the Viet Cong tried to swarm ashore less than 200 yards from the destroyed billet.

Col. Theodore Mataxis, commander of American forces in Qui Nhon, said the Viet Cong apparently tried to use a human shield of 100 Vietnamese civilians in order to get onto the beach.

He said his helicopters hovered overhead while artillerymen fired rounds across the path of the junks in an effort to stop them.

Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, and U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor went to Saigon Airport to see off a group of 150 American women and children being evacuated under President Johnson's order for withdrawal of dependents from the country.

There were developments on other fronts as Radio Hanoi, in the North Viet Nam capital, urged the guerrillas in South Viet Nam to "strike hard, very hard, at the enemy on all battlefields."

About 600 South Vietnamese government troops were wiped out in the northeast Binh Dinh Mountains in one of the worst defeats of the war.

Four U.S. Army advisers were missing after a Viet Cong band attacked a town 40 miles north of Saigon.

The roll of American combat dead rose to 263 with the killing of a helicopter crewman and the death of a captain wounded Monday.

Qui Nhon, scene of the barracks bombing, is 80 miles east of Pleiku, where a Viet Cong attack on U.S. installations Sunday touched off retaliatory strikes by U.S. and South Vietnamese war planes at targets in North Viet Nam.

There was prompt world reaction to latest developments in South Viet Nam.

Britain was reported to have accepted the Soviet view

B.C. Fraud Case

Constable Sent to Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An RCMP constable was sentenced here Wednesday to two months in jail after he pleaded guilty to fraud in the handling of meal accounts for prisoners at the jail here.

Const. A. G. Kemp, 35, was one of four men — two other RCMP constables and a restaurant owner — charged with fraud.

POSTED BOND

The restaurant owner, Low Koi Sing, 69, also pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence. Magistrate Harvey Jessop ordered Low released after he posted a $500 peace bond.

A stay of proceedings was ordered for Const. W. L. Giesbrecht, 27, who is in a Vancouver hospital with a serious head wound.

GRAVELY WOUNDED

Prosecutor Ernest Alexander of Vancouver told the court the constable is so gravely wounded he may "never be fit to conduct his affairs."

The constable's wife found him unconscious with a bullet wound in the head in their Grand Forks, B.C., home last August.

AWAITS LAWYER

Const. W. S. Austin, 26, the fourth man charged, was granted an adjournment to Feb. 26 pending the arrival of his lawyer.

Mr. Alexander said between April 1963 and July 1964, there was an over-payment in the meal accounts to Low's Grand Cafe from the Prince Rupert jail of $3,468.

Student Rioters in India Burn Police to Death

MADRAS (UPI) — Two police inspectors were burned to death and at least 19 other persons killed Wednesday in student riots protesting the use of Hindi as India's national language.

Hundreds were injured in the mob action in Madras state. Ten students were killed by police bullets in the Coimbatore district when they stormed a textile mill.

Indian Army units were ordered into four areas to halt the rampaging students.

Hindi, the language of North Central India, was made the national tongue.

Frenzied students attacked the two policemen in Coimbatore, 330 miles southwest of here, stoning and then setting them afire as they lay by the roadside. The two victims became human torches.

There was full-scale rioting in five cities of Madras state.

Four persons were killed in Tripur, about 200 miles southwest of Madras. Two students succumbed at the town of Tirunelveli. The total number of wounded was not known but reports indicated there were many casualties in the fighting between rioters and club and pistol-carrying police.

About 5,000 students tried to storm the police station at Tirunelveli. The police opened fire when they attempted to steal firearms.

During the fighting at Tripur, riot participants cut communication lines between that city and Madras.

Ringo Weds Hairdresser

LONDON (UPI) — Beatle Ringo Starr today married former hairdresser Maureen Cox, his long-time girl friend. Brian Epstein, the Beatles' manager, was best man. The couple left for a honeymoon at a secret destination. Maureen comes from Liverpool and has been dating Ringo for 18 months.

Calls 'Forgotten'

Masson testified last month that he is a member of the national Liberal organization committee and that last summer he acted as the "errand boy" between Denis and associates of Lucien Rivard.

The Duron inquiry is investigating allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that Denis offered him $20,000 to serve in release on bail of Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges. Mr. Lamontagne was still acting for the U.S. government in Rivard's extradition hearings at Montreal.

Mr. Lamontagne was recalled briefly to the witness stand Wednesday and commission counsel Andre Desjardins said he has substantially completed the inquiry's first phase.

This phase is the investigation into the truth or otherwise of Mr. Lamontagne's accusations of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides. Denis has denied making any bribe offer.

SECOND PHASE

Mr. Desjardins said he is ready to begin the second phase Thursday. This involves the conduct of the RCMP, the justice department and Justice Minister Pavreau in their handling of Mr. Lamontagne's allegations.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorian has not yet ruled on a request by some counsel that Denis' alleged connection with the immigration case of American millionaire Harry Stonehill be investigated.

Masson again testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act which means that his testimony can't be used against him in court proceedings except for perjury.

Masson said he did not place to or receive from Robert Gignac any telephone calls on the night of July 20-21 when Masson was in Ottawa and Gignac in Montreal.

Mr. Desjardins then produced Bell Telephone Company records showing Masson received a person-to-person call from "Robert" at 12:10 a.m. July 21 and made a person-to-person call to Robert Gignac at 12:40 a.m.

These two calls, the records showed, were between Masson's room in the Chateau Laurier and Maxime's Lounge in Montreal.

AT NIGHT CLUB

Gignac, Eddy Lechasseur, Mrs. Rivard and Linda Dumont, Lechasseur's waitress girlfriend, have testified they were at Maxime's the night of July 20-21, the same night, Mr. Lamontagne has testified, he received threatening calls about Rivard's bail application.

Gignac, 35, now faces five counts of perjury for his testimony before the Duron inquiry. He is also charged with capital murder in the Sept. 17 gangland slaying of a nightclub doorman.

Mr. Desjardins asked whether Masson wanted to change his testimony.

Masson said no. It was possible, he said, he might have called Gignac that night without knowing where Gignac was.

'DON'T REMEMBER'

Mr. Desjardins asked Masson why Gignac called him.

"I really and truly don't remember that call," said Masson.

Mr. Falls said that at 10:05 p.m. the same evening a call was made from Masson's room to Denis' unlisted number.

When Mr. Desjardins pressed Masson about his alleged telephone conversations with Gignac, the witness said: "I'd like to help you but I don't remember. . . I truly don't remember. Gignac and I were business associates and it may have been that I called him."

Gabriel Birkenwald, manager of the Postleberg Hotel, located in the Hotel de Ville, said that Guy Masson and Robert Gignac stayed there the night of June 22-23. Twenty-five telephone calls had been made from their adjoining rooms but he had no record now of the calls.

Mr. Birkenwald said he offered the record to the RCMP but "they didn't consider them important enough to take away." They had made notes of the telephone numbers.

The 21st day of the hearings ended with a long argument among counsel about how RCMP reports of the police investigation will be filed with the commission.

The Letter Spurs Attack

he allowed to tamper with the public business of this province by misrepresentation," he said.

Mr. Harding said "one of the tragedies of this case" was the fact that many innocent individuals would be suspected until a charge was laid.

"The attorney-general must act quickly and in a manner that is both firm and just," the speaker said. "I urge him to delay no longer. This is far too serious."

Mr. Harding said the action of referring the phony letter to the Duron inquiry in Ottawa amounted to an evasion of duty on the part of the attorney-general.

Another late development in the Stonehill case was the filing of answers by Premier Bennett to questions put on the order paper by Gordon Dowling (NDP, Burnaby).

The premier said he had never travelled in the special PGE coach with Mr. Stonehill and others named in the case, and the special coach had not been used since last year by the re-election council of Toronto for the maritime trusteeship set up 16 months ago by the federal government.

Attitude of Canada Markedly Cautious Over Yukon Proposal

WASHINGTON (CP) — A comprehensive report on damming the Yukon River into the largest man-made reservoir in the world has been turned over to a special study group, U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall said Wednesday.

The $1,200,000,000 project would be located at the Rampart Canyon in Alaska and involve Canada to some extent.

But Canada's attitude to Rampart is markedly cautious so far. Rampart is regarded as premature.

Udall released Wednesday a three-volume appraisal of the pros and cons in making a 10,000-square-mile reservoir, larger than Lake Erie and astride the Arctic circle. It would take about 22 years to fill.

Its hydro-electric capacity is rated at about 5,000,000 kilowatts, or 1,000,000 more than the estimated full capacity of the

Seamen Say Unions Do Good Job

TORONTO (CP) — A survey among Canadian seamen indicates most of them feel their unions are doing a good job.

One-third of those polled said their union is doing an excellent job, half thought their unions are "fairly good," 7.5 per cent are not happy with the job being done, and 1.5 per cent describe their union's efforts as "very poor."

The survey covered a representative 496 seamen, including 306 members of the controversial Seafarers' International Union (Ind.). The survey was conducted last year by the re-election council of Toronto for the maritime trusteeship set up 16 months ago by the federal government.

Canadian leg of the Columbia river in British Columbia.

A low hydro price of two to three mills per kilowatt hour is claimed by its supporters.

Udall, in a press statement, said Canada's involvement concerns extensive flooding of migratory waterfowl areas. Canada also would be involved in transmission through extra-high-voltage facilities to markets in the U.S. Pacific northwest.

Udall said cautiously that "views already have been expressed by Canadian spokesmen as to the receptiveness of their government . . . their views have been noted by this government."

Gland Trouble Can Cause Body Odor That Persists

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman of 37 and suffer from body odors over which I have no control. I bathe once and sometimes twice a day. We are in comfortable circumstances and I have adequate changes of clothing and sufficient dry cleaning. I have used medicated soaps and deodorants of all kinds without success.

The odor is perspiration but a sort of stale, musky one which permeates all my clothing after a few wearings, even my coats.

Is there a physical reason for this?—E.W.W.

Soap and water is the answer to this problem in most cases, but in someone who takes the pains that you do, and the trouble persists, it is time to look for some of the less obvious answers.

Fresh perspiration from the sweat glands is odorless. But there is another type of gland (called the apocrine) which secretes a milky, odorous fluid. Their degree of activity varies markedly in some individuals.

SIMPLE PROCEDURE

There have been cases in which these glands, located chiefly in the armpits, have been removed. It is a relatively simple procedure, but should be discussed with a dermatologist or plastic surgeon.

Naturally taking such action should not be done unless the trouble has been reliably traced to these glands.

Another source of odor is from micro-organisms which flourish on the skin and in the moisture of perspiration. The odor is from these multiplying organisms, not from the perspiration. Where one takes as much trouble as you do with hygiene, this is not a likely cause, however.

Finally, a musty odor can be due to a skin disorder called tinea versicolor, a common and mild infection of the skin. To rule this out (or to correct it if it is present), consult a dermatologist. He may even find some other condition of which you are unaware.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to have asthma without positive allergies?—B.P.H.

Yes, it is possible, especially in older people.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 10-year-old daughter has dandruff. How can I get rid of it?—MRS. T.

Dandruff at that age suggests a skin disease. Consult a dermatologist (skin specialist) rather than waste time trying to correct the problem on a hit-or-miss basis.

Lesage After Pearson's Job?

By VIO WILAZUR

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage implied Wednesday night there was some demand from within the Pearson cabinet that he enter the federal field and become prime minister.

Mr. Lesage told newsmen after the legislature adjourned there have been numerous demands from outside the Pearson cabinet that he step into Prime Minister Pearson's shoes. Asked if there were any demands from within the cabinet itself, he replied:

"It's a professional secret. I cannot answer that."

The premier studiously played with a small piece of wire as he answered a barrage of questions.

"Do you like being premier of Quebec?" he was asked.

"Yes," replied the premier, twisting the wire between his fingers.

"Would you like to be prime minister of Canada?" another asked.

Lesage laughed out loud and exclaimed, "I knew you were going to ask me that!"

Taking a more serious tone, Mr. Lesage said, "One never knows what providence has in store."

A reporter asked Mr. Lesage if he would compete against Ontario Premier John Robarts for the top job in Canada.

"I'm afraid of no one," he said.

Asked if he favored anyone to replace him as premier in the event he should enter the federal field, Mr. Lesage said no.

However, he said, if he planned to retire as premier he would call the Quebec Liberal Federation to organize a convention and choose a new party leader.

"But I would back no one," he said.

"I intend to remain here for a long time," said Mr. Lesage.

Asked what he termed a long time, he replied, "Use your judgment."

"Do you think (Natural Resources Minister) Rene Levesque would make a good premier?"

he was asked, Mr. Lesage laughed along with the reporters.

The questions were provoked following several speculative articles in newspapers and magazines recently that Mr. Lesage intended to return to Ottawa.

He spent several years as a member of the Louis St. Laurent cabinet as minister of northern affairs before returning to Quebec in 1960 to lead the provincial Liberals back to power after a 16-year absence.

Political observers speculated Mr. Lesage's projected western Canadian tour was designed to let the rest of Canada have a good, long look at the future prime minister of the country.

Constable Killed

British Police Shoot Suspect

OXENHOLME, England (Reuters)—Police shot down a man in a mountain manhunt Wednesday after one unarmed policeman was killed and two others wounded while trying to arrest a suspected burglar in a railway waiting room.

The hunted man, shot in the head and thigh by a policeman armed with a rifle, was reported in "very poor" condition in the same hospital where policeman George Russell, 36, died earlier in the day of bullet wounds.

man is being withheld until he is charged, probably late today. Russell was the fifth British policeman murdered in the last seven years. His death seems likely to harden opposition to a bill to end the death penalty in Britain, which already has been approved in principle by the House of Commons.

Hitherto, the death sentence has been mandatory for killing a policeman, but Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice last week rejected a police request to retain this penalty.

New Retaliation?

that their shared duties of insuring peace in the Viet Nam under the 1954 Geneva settlement have expired. Lapse of the British-Soviet co-chairmanship may complicate procedures for seeking out any peace conference.

London defence sources said Britain had ordered additional troops and warships to Malaysia in view of increased Southeast Asian tensions.

Dispatch of new ships will bring the Royal Navy total in the area to about 80 vessels, including some from Australia and New Zealand.

Soviet Premier Kosygin moved on from Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, to Peking for a one-day visit, as both Moscow and Peking repeated earlier pledges of aid to North Viet Nam against U.S. retaliatory raids.

Said the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia:

"Let the initiators of these brazen actions have no illusions about the determination of the Soviet Union and its allies to take all necessary measures to safeguard the security and defences of North Viet Nam."

Before Kosygin's arrival Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, along with Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung and head-of-state Liu Shao-chi, led more than 1,000,000 Chinese in a giant two-hour "hands off Viet Nam" rally.

Liu said 650,000,000 Chinese would not stand idly by without lending a helping hand to the North Vietnamese.

In an airport speech before leaving Hanoi, Kosygin said Russia and North Viet Nam had agreed on measures to be taken to strengthen the defence potentiality of North Viet Nam. He gave no further details.

Kosygin left Peking for North Korea on an unexpected visit.

Prime Minister Pearson warned in Ottawa that the Viet Nam situation could escalate into a "full-scale Far Eastern Chinese-American war."

He supported, he said, an Indian government appeal for "an immediate suspension of all provocative action in South Viet Nam as well as North Viet Nam by all sides."

France's President de Gaulle said in Paris that fighting would settle nothing in Southeast Asia, and offered again to help negotiate a neutralization of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

This would mean that all the countries involved in the area—all of them formerly French Indochina—would have to promise to keep out of each other's affairs.

Attack Brings Year in Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Trenholme, 21, of Vancouver, was sentenced here Wednesday to one year in prison for the attack on a city school teacher.

Miss Wesley Seed, 22, said she was attacked by a half-naked man outside her home here during a howling windstorm Dec. 26.

Miss Seed wore a plaster cast over her nose as she testified against Trenholme.

War of Containment

THE SERIES of bombing raids carried out by the American and South Vietnamese air forces on North Viet Nam military targets should dispel any suspicion the outside world may entertain that the United States is preparing to negotiate her way out of her present position in Southeast Asia.

By choosing to follow this direct and emphatic line of action Washington has not only re-committed itself to its professed purpose of actively resisting the encroachment of militant Communism upon the free world, but seemingly has also given public notice that the United States is ready to meet its threat anywhere in the world by trading punch for punch.

There are, of course, strong political factions throughout the West and within the United States itself who believe that America should now withdraw from actively participating in the Viet Nam struggle; that unless it is prepared to fight an all-out war it cannot win, and that the risk it even now runs is far too great for the reward of a doubtful victory.

In not heeding these warnings the Johnson administration seems to give every indication that it firmly believes that if the United States retreats from Viet Nam now it would only mean that it would at some later date be called upon to fight again in yet another area which may pose even greater disadvantages and problems than the present theatre of operations.

That the United States is now not only prepared to stand its ground but hit back gives considerable substance to the argument that the third world war is already under way and is even now being fought on a broad front throughout Southeast Asia.

If this is so, then the United States is unquestionably following the best tactics in Viet Nam—Britain is doing in Malaysia—by attempting to contain the advancing enemy wherever he may strike.

In such a war—if war it be—neither spectacular gains nor major losses need be expected. Victory enough will be registered by the forces of freedom if they can but prevent the conflagration from spreading to the rest of the world.

Words and Action

IN A SPEECH before Toronto Liberals last week Prime Minister Lester Pearson outlined his views on integrity in government and the quality of leadership.

Leadership, he said, meant insistence by the leader on high standards of political conduct and action in government. "When these standards are betrayed, then those who betrayed them must go."

"But," he added, "leadership also means refusing to yield to unfair partisan and popular pressure, by sacrificing to such pressures those men who do not deserve it."

Later in the week the prime minister addressed members of Canadian University Liberal Federation in much the same vein. He would not allow, he said, "false insinuations and suspicious smokecreens . . . to pressure me into doing the wrong thing in order to establish the right superficial image."

Though most Canadians will welcome Mr. Pearson's stirring declaration of principles, many will be constrained to ask whether the prime minister really believes and is prepared to act upon them.

Certainly his recent peremptory dismissal of former Minister Without Portfolio Yvon Dupuis seems inconsistent with the ideals the prime minister now publicly champions.

A quick review of this incident reveals that Mr. Dupuis was not the victim of any "unfair partisan" (meaning opposition) pressures; that the former minister has declared that he is innocent of any wrongdoing, and that Mr. Pearson has refused to comment on the matter on the grounds that certain allegations brought against Mr. Dupuis are still under investigation by the RCMP.

On the face of things and by his own admission, Mr. Pearson seems to have yielded to pressures—though not brought to bear by opposition partisan forces—to fire Mr. Dupuis over a matter about which all facts are not yet known.

Surely this action is diametrically opposed to the very standards of leadership he now so vociferously espouses.

Towns in Parks

MR. KIERNAN rues that more than 30 years ago mineral and timber rights were crown-granted in perpetuity in Strathcona Park. The recreation and conservation minister says that it would now be "financially impossible and completely impractical" to regain these rights and restore the park to its original state. This should serve to make him all the more acutely aware of the onus on him to make decisions with regard to the park that will not be equally or even more lamented when another 30 years have gone by.

If the province cannot buy out the claims, it must be granted that "safeguarding to the best possible extent the natural beauty of this area," in Mr. Kiernan's words, is all that can be expected of the government, providing the words "best possible extent" mean exactly that. And where the right to mine in the park exists and the prospects are sufficiently enticing, it may benefit no one, as the minister suggests, to make the job as tough as it can be.

But denying permission to a company to build a town near its mine in the park is surely far from the ultimate in imposed hardship. As one up-island conservationist has noted, many loggers are accustomed to driving farther to work than the 30 miles the mine employees will have to travel if their homes are to be located outside of the park. And the public benefit of preventing the intrusion of settlements into what are meant to be kept as unspoiled wilds—whether or not such communities include the full array of commercial development—is beyond question.

One town in a park would not be absolute ruin, even if it would not be welcome to those seeking to preserve the natural heritage, either. But if one now, how many in future?

A precedent will be set on this application, and there is a heavy responsibility on Mr. Kiernan and his cabinet colleagues to make a decision that will not be increasingly regretted as the years go by.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax

By TOM TAYLOR

A PHYSICAL education professor at UBC says Canada won't ever be able to house the Olympic Games until it changes its attitudes. Until for instance it has sports facilities scattered around town like public lavatories.

Which town, I wonder, for if Victoria is the criterion on this basis the chance of holding an Olympiad in Canada is far off.

As a colleague in his city hall column on the subject implied recently, you could hunt our downtown area with a microscope and be hard put to find the easement of a public washroom.

I pity the poor stranger in distress, especially on a Sunday. Strange the reluctance of cities to provide ample lavatory facilities; as though this was something to be spoken of only in whispers.

Fundamentally, too, the need for a washroom can be as individually pressing as that of any sports field.

One thing about book lovers is that they hate to part with volumes that come their way. They hang on to those they borrow as easily as they lend them.

I am on both the debit and credit side of this exchange myself, suffering remorse every time my eye lands on a book I should have returned long since.

But I got a surprise this week. A young chap of around twenty to whom I loaned a book kept his promise, right on the nail. He said he made a habit of returning books promptly, and he lived up to his word.

I didn't ask him to promise, but he offered the reassurance. He would have got the book without any guarantee.

When he handed it back, however, I took deep thought. Youth is often assailed as being careless, irresponsible. This lad certainly wasn't. In fact he put the elder criteria of book borrowers, including myself, to shame.

I suggested the other day that it wouldn't be a bad idea for Canada to follow Britain and the United States in issuing a commemorative Churchill stamp. Some other countries are expected to do likewise and it wouldn't do us to lag behind.

We are not going to. The postmaster-general at Ottawa has announced a similar special stamp to be issued on Aug. 12, an appropriate date tying in a historic meeting in Canadian waters, when Sir Winston and FDR signed the Atlantic Charter off the coast of Newfoundland.

This is good, and not only for philatelists but all who honor a great man.

In life the great man himself was a boon to humanity; in death he is proving a bonanza to the publishing industry.

A note from London tells of the spurge to get Churchill's "My Early Life," in Mr. Kiernan's words, is all that can be expected of the government, providing the words "best possible extent" mean exactly that. And where the right to mine in the park exists and the prospects are sufficiently enticing, it may benefit no one, as the minister suggests, to make the job as tough as it can be.

One American paperback was set by trans-Atlantic telephone the day he died, and 25,000 copies flown into London two days later. A new English hardback was in the bookshops a few days later.

A surprising demand, the book trade has noticed, is for Churchill's "My Early Life," with 100,000 paperback copies already sold and more being printed.

Record companies are also reaping a rich harvest. His war speeches are selling spectacularly, the Observer says, and a long-playing disc, "The Voice of Winston Churchill," is listed among the Top Ten records.

It is a voice to be heard through the years for a long time yet to come. Churchillians will be in many a home around the globe.

Ottawa Offbeat

A Fantastic Spectacle

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IT ISN'T fantastic, almost incredible, the way the feuding Conservatives, seemingly, again, determined on self-mutilation, have been making all those unflattering headlines and destructive news broadcasts?

With the Dorion investigation in progress, the dismissal of Yvon Dupuis from the cabinet and other ministerial embarrassments plaguing Prime Minister Pearson, this, of all times, should have been a period when the Conservatives might better have left the headlines to the Liberals.

What political profit there might have been for them, in these last couple of weeks, to have remained quiet or, at least, kept their party troubles decently to themselves and left the government with a damaging monopoly of the big type on the front pages.

And the government, oddly, seemed to be doing everything in its power to assist the Conservatives.

While the Dorion commission churned out its daily quota of rumors, gossip and scandal-bait of improprieties in high government places, Prime Minister Pearson, perhaps overwhelmed by the melancholy prospect of even more unpleasantness to come, did nothing to counteract it.

Nor did any members of the cabinet.

They could have taken at least some of the emphasis off the scandal news, had they made news of a more constructive nature.

They might have used the always dependable device of the press conference to announce this or that—anything that might indicate action and a will to rise above the political mist.

It got so that the Conservatives with their "Dump Dief" rebellion could take the news play away from the Liberals and their woes with fancy furniture deals, tinkering with gangland deportations and seeming solubility with the Mafia.

And if you think that feelings may run high between Liberals and Conservatives during election campaigns, you should have been around Parliament Hill's Centre Block in recent days to see what real hostility can be.

The splintered Conservatives were like two armed camps—and there was one day when it looked like they were coming to actual blows in the parliamentary cafeteria.

The Quebec Conservative rebels, notably Leon Balcer, the Three Rivers MP who was supposed to be Mr. Diefenbaker's deputy, and Paul Martineau, one of his former cabinet ministers, were sounding off on how, for the sake of national unity, he had to go.

It apparently didn't occur to any of those concerned that such a feuding group of parliamentarians and such a divided party was scarcely in a position to lecture anybody about unity, national or any other variety.

In turn, some of the Ontario Conservative loyalists, particularly Doug Alkenbrack, MP for Prince Edward Lennox, were talking of slugging Martineau and company as traitors and trouble-makers.

Alkenbrack could probably do it, too, if he really was of such a mind, for at the close of the flag debate, he had to go.

All served only to further attract public attention which otherwise might have been directed to the even-compounding cabinet difficulties of the Liberals.

Mr. Diefenbaker attempted to re-focus the public eye when reporters, asking him "what was new in the leadership crisis," in turn were asked what was new in "ministerial indiscretions." But he couldn't beat the competition his own party was giving him.

tributions in Africa. They maintain that the whites have no rights in Africa, but are merely exploiters.

Certainly one can argue that a confrontation of the U.S. and Russia would demolish the U.N. and destroy African hopes of aid.

Unfortunately arguments have little weight against the deep suspicions and hostilities of Africa. Their whole continent seethes with hunger, anxiety, and frustration. Few of the African nations can strictly speaking be regarded as such. This is a basic problem. The imperialist powers cut the country up arbitrarily, dividing tribes and historic territories. As a matter of fact the continent's natural resources are tribal rather than national. Quarrels and adjustments will continue for decades, in consequence, though it is a factor which also makes for pan-Africanism.

The "summit meeting" between President Johnson and Soviet leaders both in the U.S. and Moscow will carry high hopes of a revision of American and Russian policies in Europe, Asia, and in the U.N. Consequently it is quite possible that the U.N. and other major developments will be taken or not taken by the president and Premier Kossygin. Pacification of the African situation may also be achieved so far as these two countries are concerned. The whole American foreign policy is undergoing radical, if unpublicized, revision.

Meanwhile Africans complain that they are treated as if they don't count. A meeting of women delegates to the U.N. resolved to urge their delegations into getting the U.N. down to business.

All the while China puns contentedly licking her lips over the bowl of cream.

Nationalizing Land

Our Readers' Views

THE number of appeals against assessments in Oak Bay well illustrates the need of nationalizing all land—not the buildings or improvements on it.

Over 100 appeals have been made and from a glance at this list of names and properties posted near the entrance to the municipal hall it would seem that many of these appeals are quite unwarranted, coming as they do in many cases from well-to-do people who have benefited from the increase in property values in the last few years and no doubt, in many instances, from increased dividends and capital gains on their investments during the same period.

If the average increase is 40 per cent then there must be a number below even that percent age. I might mention here that while my own "improvements" assessment remains unchanged my land assessment has increased a little over 63 per cent—much higher than some others and it is only a single small lot.

The municipality is now assessing at 50 per cent of market value under Section 37 of the Equalization Act but I wonder how this is determined and if the owners who are appealing would be willing to sell their property at twice the assessed values which they claim are too high.

I question if they would. As the Archbishop of Canterbury (William Temple) suggested in his book "Christianity and the Social Order," the present owners of property might be asked to value it themselves, with the state having the right or power to purchase it at the figure named or levy a tax on the owner's own valuation, whichever might seem most expedient in each case. If such legislation were passed it would seem that these protesters would be "hoist with their own petard."

Rising Prices

Are the newspapers in Canada impotent to do anything to arrest the never-ending rise in prices and wages? During the Second World War wages and prices were frozen and rationing was put into effect to prevent or minimize black marketing by unscrupulous people.

Inflation goes on apace and, if something is not done soon to check it, hundreds of thousands of OAFs and people trying to exist on fixed incomes will find the little money they still have—to eke out a starvation existence—is worthless.

Let me make a comparison of the cost of living between 1940-1945 and 1965. In the former period a loaf of bread cost 3c to 5c, in 1965 it costs 20c to 25c; in 1940-45 a quart of milk cost 8c, in 1965 it costs 25c; a pound of skin of beef cost 5c in 1940-45 and in 1965 it costs 75c; butter in 1945 was 26c a pound, in 1965 it is 63c. The foregoing prices are for the very necessities of life. Vegetables, fruit and many other foodstuffs have risen correspondingly.

The present government, evidently, does not intend to take any action to prevent strikes, which are the main cause of the never-ending price increases, and the so-called labor man does not care as long as he can buy the choice cuts of meat, unlimited supplies of other foodstuffs, clothing and automobiles. Selfishness, greed and callousness are rife, so much so that many a frugal housewife has to scrape the bottoms of the few resources of her life.

Better Break

With so many millions in sight, why not one to put the buses in the black, and restore the lower fares, which are such a hardship to a great many people? Heard of "one today, an OAP who has to ride a bus every day, afternoon and evening, to get to the hospital and back."

The old people, and this city is full of them, should have a better break.

Justice

I wish to voice a loud hurrah for Mr. Le Cour's speech as it appeared in The Colonist. Our standard of living and prosperity are advancing rapidly, but our standard of "justice" in lower courts has not advanced in many years.

My own experience in a police court in 1957 on a traffic charge remains with me as the ultimate in frustration and humiliation. My rewards for trying to prove my innocence were three appearances in court, a $50 fine, and my testimony being completely disregarded.

I sincerely hope Mr. Le Cour can start the ball rolling in defence of the "Christians."

Robbed

If you can stand another few words about the flag controversy:

Something has been lately said and written, to the effect that the Pearson flag should now be accepted merely because it has been passed in Parliament.

I would like it known that I, for one, will neither recognize nor accept the new flag, because it does not have the Union Jack as part of its design. That is all that I have against it.

I am not ashamed of Canada's association with Britain and see no reason why the Canadian public should be robbed of something which most of us cherish, and then be expected to make out that we like being robbed?

The reason is obvious why the prime minister would not let this matter come to a public vote; he knew very well that a large majority would vote for retention of the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

Personally, I don't like being robbed.

The New Flag

Many Canadians look with sadness at our new flag. Many people, possibly the same, feel sadness at growing old and often think and wish they were young again. We had a flag of English colors, because we were a young and weak nation and needed English protection; we will remember!

Fortunately, we have grown into a strong and producing nation with a brilliant future. We can now rule our destiny in co-operation with the peace-loving nations of the earth. We have grown older; our Canadian flag is the symbol of the change.

To those who served under the British colors, and look with sorrow, even with anger at the Canadian flag, I say, it is childish, it is the least to register the growth of Canada.

By trying to prevent the birth of a true Canadian flag, Diefenbaker has gone very low, he has cost our country a fortune by his false attachment to Britain. If the idea of the "Mother Country" were pushed to the limits, a picture of a banana or a coconut would figure on all flags. Reason requires that a free nation flies a distinctive flag.

Every Canadian should remember with pride, the country where he or his ancestors were born, but his perpetual talking about it will finally (like the widower who can not find a wife because of his constant talking of his former spouse) make him look and feel a stranger and treated as such by a real Canadian.

So for our own sake let us be sincere Canadians, with a Canadian flag, Canadian laurels for our soldiers or devoted men, Canadian dollars for their services, their security and pensions, and the other nations' envy for their valor. If we cannot be such Canadians, then let us consider ourselves visitors in a friendly land and let us be thankful enough for the hospitality granted us by not trying to force our ideas on such a gentle and so often helpful host!

Fluoridation

The Victoria Labor Council is closely identified with incessant demands of its representative labor unions for unreasonably higher wages which inevitably lead to the higher cost of living.

Now this labor council wants a by-law for compulsory fluoridation in our drinking water supplies.

Victoria citizens in 1959 voted conclusively against this form of compulsory medication, and would undoubtedly do so again. Citizens here are generally too intelligent to be misled by any organization with misguided ideas.

A report considered to be one of the greatest state papers in the English language was handed to the British Parliament by the Earl of Durham 136 years ago today—in 1839. Durham had been sent to Canada in 1838 as governor-general and lord high commissioner with almost dictatorial powers. His report, which became the guide to British colonial policies ever since, led to the union of Upper and Lower Canada. Durham died a year later, five days after royal assent was given to the bill for unification.

U.S. Target: Stalemate

By RICHARD JACKSON, from Washington

With the passage of a little time, crisis-ridden American officials realized that nothing was changed by the air retaliation in Viet Nam. The problem remained the same: To get in deeper or to begin to get out.

All major aspects of the dilemma are very large and long range. One ground attack will not drive Americans out of Viet Nam. One or two air attacks will not lessen the Red Chinese determination to rule all Southeast Asia and push the U.S. back to the Philippines and beyond.

This is the real issue. The difference between those who would pull back and those who would stay put is in the evaluation of whether or not a fallback would have any material effect on the American strategic position in the world.

The local military action in Viet Nam has postponed further discussion of a negotiated settlement but the history of events there suggests that it will arise again.

It is the contention of Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador, that a stalemate has in fact been reached in Viet Nam. During this stalemate he hopes that a government can be organized and maintained which will have true national aspirations equal to standing against the Red Chinese.

He, and others, are talking in very long range terms which would imply that the American commitment in South Viet Nam might last for decades more.

The concept of stalemate is not brushed aside by American officials as something to be shunned. That is, in fact, what happened in Korea and has continued now for 10 years. Stalemate is the condition that exists, and has existed for 20 years, between the Republic of China and the Chinese People's Republic. Stalemate is certainly regarded as better than defeat. It is very costly in Korea, on Formosa and in Southeast Asia but the alternative in the end might be more expensive. As is now being demonstrated in Formosa, the cost can decline and a nation can be built where none existed before.

Stalemate is hard to live with besides being expensive. It is hard to maintain and defend politically in a country where winning ranks so high in the morality scale. Failing to win is a ready-made political issue for the party out of power. But Eisenhower survived it in Korea after failing to win caused discontent with the Truman administration.

Responsible officials are not so certain as Lodge, whose responsibility is at an end, that a stalemate does exist. They have pointed out that in the past year infiltration of South Viet Nam from the north has doubled. But the policy being pursued points toward the creation of stalemate, whatever President Johnson may call it.

Every military response to Viet Cong attack by U.S. forces is limited to fit the situation and U.S. forces are not driving north nor are the South Vietnamese. President Johnson often reminds his advisers that the late General MacArthur advised him never to get bogged down in a land war in Asia. A war has yet to be won by air action alone.

By taking the stand it has in Asia since the Second World War the U.S. has prevented the complete domination of East Asia by the Communists and preserved a climate in which Japan and the Philippines could grow and prosper. If it had not stood firm all of Korea would be Communist. Chiang Kai-shek would not exist, a major part of Southeast Asia would be under Chinese domination and Japan and the Philippines would be in the shadow of a Peiping government stronger than it is today.

There is much to be said, therefore, for the policy of creating and maintaining a stalemate. However unsavory the word, this has been the main line of U.S. policy since the end of the Second World War, not only in Asia but at the testing point in Berlin. The confrontation and stalemate at the dividing line between western and eastern Europe held the line until the western nations could recover and become more prosperous than ever before.

Also a stalemate was created in Greece and at Trieste. A neutral if not entirely independent Austria emerged. Stalemate in Asia could have the further advantages of driving a wedge between Russia and China. The U.S. has much to gain from the policy, and the Johnson doctrine of limited response helps to promote it.

Irradiated Food Genetic Hazard?

By JOHN DAVY, from London

A suggestion that food treated with atomic radiation may be a genetic hazard is contained in a paper published in Nature by Dr. O. Parkash, of Vienna University.

Food treated in this way is not yet available commercially although marketing of irradiated bacon and potatoes is believed to have been authorized in America and Canada. The irradiation sterilizes the bacon and stops potatoes sprouting. A lot of research into the commercial possibilities is going on.

Dr. Parkash bases his warning on new experiments with fruit flies. He has been giving them food containing a small amount of pure DNA—the substance of the cell nucleus which carries hereditary information—which has been exposed to heavy doses of X-rays.

Offspring of the flies fed on this material revealed a high proportion of genetic mutations—noticeably lethal mutations affecting the male flies. In other words, the second generation contained far fewer males than it ought to have done.

Dr. Parkash states that his results indicate a 23-fold increase in the mutation rate. In control experiments, flies were fed on non-irradiated DNA, and their offspring revealed no mutations. This shows clearly, Dr. Parkash argues, that irradiated DNA, taken as food, can produce genetic mutations.

Since all biological materials (including foodstuffs) contain DNA, Dr. Parkash says: "If our conclusions are substantiated, one might infer that the sterilization of food by employing high doses of ionizing radiation is not desirable."

Britain Gives Up Unequal Struggle

By ARTHUR MACKENZIE

Britain's decision to junk its go-it-alone policy in developing costly new weapons systems—recalling the ill-fated Canadian Arrow aircraft program—is another milestone in a continuing trend.

Increasingly, the United States' armament industry is the dominant one in the Western world. Only France for nationalistic reasons, pursues a more independent course.

One upshot is increasing competition among Canada, Britain, West Germany and other U.S. allies for a slice of the armament production which lightens the financial burden of modern defence needs.

"Whether we like it or not, the all-British plane is out," Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins said in announcing plans to buy two U.S. versions rather than British machines.

"We are at the end of the road in the production of complicated weapons systems for an exclusive British market."

The same situation—inability to build an aircraft that could be sold elsewhere—broke up the Avro Arrow.

Britain marked its policy shift with an order for $850,000,000 worth of Phantom II jet fighters and heavy transports.

Low interest payments, spread over seven years, lighten the burden. So will arrangements to use British Rolls-Royce jet engines.

Ejector seats and some other equipment will also be made in Britain and negotiations continue about the possibility of assembling some of the aircraft there.

Britain also intends to work on co-operative production with France, but the U.S. armaments industry, by its size and role, has a built-in advantage.

U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara noted, in announcing the British deal and one with Australia worth $350,000,000, that U.S. allies in the last four years have purchased $8,000,000,000 worth of arms against one-sixth that value in the four years previous.

This trend, of substantial benefit to U.S. international earnings, reflects some of the dependence on the U.S. by industries in other countries. Canada has been a prime participant in deals parcelling out U.S. production. But as the field has become more crowded, Britain and West Germany have passed her.

Prime Minister Wilson in his visit to Washington last December worked out with President Johnson the basis for negotiations on greater U.S.-British co-operation in developing new weapons systems.

Germany also has been active.

Defence Minister Helmut Schmidt, informants say, has a good idea what slice of his $1,500,000,000 five-year program will be spent on U.S. gear, including fighter aircraft.

How much can be paid for by defence-production sharing will be negotiated.

Garden Notes

The Bark Beautiful

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Some trees and shrubs are planted because their fruits or berries are good to eat. Some win a place in our gardens because of the beauty of their blossoms—the rose, the lilac and the rhododendron are good examples. A few—cypress, juniper and the like—are valued for their shape—their inherent grace and architectural form.

In addition to these, there are a scant half-dozen or so which are treasured by discerning gardeners principally for the beauty of their bark.

Of these, pride of place for winter beauty must be accorded to the birches—the betula family—all of graceful habit and most of them possessing bark of a distinctive silver, white or cream color. Betula papyrifera, the paper birch, is the one most commonly planted for the silvery sheen of its bark and the delicate red tracery of its twigs. Betula utilis, not so well known around here, is most attractive with a rich cream bark and rust-brown twigs.

For attractive bark, our native arbutus has no peer. Known as the madroña tree in California, this is the ONLY broad-leaved evergreen tree growing wild in the whole of Canada.

The arbutus secretes certain sap chemicals which penetrate the bark layers and give it a different and most attractive color. These layers peel off fancifully in summer to expose shades of terra cotta, jade, yellow and rust, and with a suede-like surface quite unlike the trunk of any other tree.

One thing has always puzzled me about the arbutus. Why is it that the bark always feels cool to the touch, even on the hottest summer day? I must check this some day with a thermometer to see whether it is in fact cooler than the surrounding air or whether this is some kind of touch illusion.

I think the most dramatic and eye-catching bark I ever saw was that of a cherry, Prunus serrula, not to be confused with P. serrulata, which is the Japanese flowering cherry. P. serrula, from Western China, in no great shakes from its blossoms and the fruit is too small to be of any use, but the winter beauty of its bark is out of this world! You'd swear, to look at it, that the tree had covered itself with a sheet of burnished copper!

The willows and the shrubby type of dogwoods provide us with a wealth of winter bark color, and the trick with these subjects is to prune them drastically every year to keep up a plentiful supply of young shoots, for only the youthful portions of these plants hold their attractive coloring. The violet willow, Salix daphnoides, has violet-colored stems covered with a blue-white powder rather like the "bloom" on the skin of a grape. The golden willow, Salix vitellina aurea, has a bark of shining golden yellow.

I have seen Cornus alba, the red-barked dogwood, used quite effectively as a hedge and, while it loses its leaves in the winter, it becomes even more attractive during its leafless stage by virtue of its bright red stems. It has a gold-stemmed cousin, Cornus flavi-rames, the yellow-barked dogwood.

Two shrubs fairly well known hereabouts possess vivid green stems in addition to attractive blossoms. These are Kerria japonica or Jew's Mallow, and Leucoctera formosa, sometimes known as Grandmother's Ringlets by reason of the hanging curls of purple flowers. With both these shrubs, the flowering stems should be cut away annually to maintain the bright paddy-green color of the bark.

JACK SMITH Keeps Feet On the Ground

Space Aid for Earthlings

The State of California has given $100,000 to the Space General Corp., a company mainly concerned with the problems of outer space, to make a study of crime and delinquency here on earth.

This is certainly a provocative approach. Obviously, we who are concerned with community problems haven't been able to solve them on our own level. Maybe the answers do lie in space.

I would like for Space General to spend some of its $100,000 inquiring into the case of a 600 inquiring into the case of a friend of mine, Ed Frakus. But his problem obviously is too big for him.

Do you suppose the answer to Ed's problem can be found in outer space?

As I understand it, aerospace people are concerned with human perfection, not frailty. I wonder whether people who spend all their waking hours thinking in terms of human perfection would be able to deal wisely with the Frakus problem, which is, surely, a problem in imperfection.

Of course, Frakus is not a criminal or even a delinquent. He is just a man whose wife has left him. Blameless, probably, friend of mine, Ed Frakus. But his problem obviously is too big for him.

Apparently what has happened is that the aerospace industry has bought up all the good thinkers, and we are trying to hire them back, part time anyway, to think about problems that those of us who are left are just not smart enough to solve.

The aerospace industry is probably at fault for my failure to put a sprinkling system in our backyard. It is what my wife wants more than anything in the world. But I can't figure out how to do it and I can't find anybody else who can.

We hired a man once to do the job. He came over in a pickup truck and spent the morning studying the terrain. "I'll have to go to the hardware store," he said, and drove off. He never came back.

I worked it out once in theory, but it was only a theory. It wasn't practical. When I actually got the shovel out and started to dig, I saw that there was something wrong with the theory. I hadn't counted on the ground being so hard.

Maybe it's wrong for all the best brains to be used up in one industry, and that one far removed from earth.

Some of the geniuses ought to be put in sprinkling systems.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Inga in Baker Street?

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Inga Swenson is the number-one prospect to star in the movie version of Baker Street which hits Broadway in a week, and for which a smash hit is predicted. I understand that MGM invested $500,000 in the show, so I guess they got the film rights.

Michael Caine is the Cockney most likely to star in the movie version of Inga. At one time Laurence Harvey had it, then Terence Stamp, who starred on the New York stage. Michael played the Etonian officer in Joe Levine's Zulu and and that was a real test of acting because in real life it doesn't take a Professor Higgins to detect the Cockney origin.

Everyone always gets so misty-eyed and nostalgic for the old days. But not Melvyn Douglas. "I have no nostalgia for the old days," Melvyn was saying. "It was a rat race," continued the man who starred with Garbo and all the glamour girls. He is currently in Bapstur. "It's far more interesting and certainly more challenging, for an actor in films today." It's harder to get good roles, but it pays off when you do.

Maurice Chevalier was asked, "How does it feel to be 76?" The old boulevardier smiled and said, "Oh, a lot younger than being 77."

With wife Anna Maria Albergheiti warbling at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, husband Charles Gorman has found it more convenient to do his pre-production toll on Robinson Crusoe, A Go Go in the same enchanting city with his pretty new bride. There will be two weeks of locationing in Tahiti for the film, and you can bet that Anna will go along for the ride.

Actresses who choose a part by its size, should reflect on the case of British Julie Christie. She appeared in Billy Liar for only 10 minutes. But her beauty, talent and special way of walking, has made her the most sought-after young actress, not only in England, but in Hollywood. They all want her.

Rapha Laron was saying in Nice that if her baby had lived, it would now be seven or eight months old. "I'm still not over it," she told British reporter David Lewis on the set of Lady L, adding, "I am 30 now, and that is not too old to have a child." Happily for them all, this time when she has a baby, it will be considered legal in Italy, because now she will be able to marry Carlo Fendi, and it will be recognized in her native land.

The David Niven film, One Spy Too Many may have another title change, because as MGM executive biggie Mervyn Silverstein told me, "perhaps the critics will say this is one spy picture too many." Not if it is good, they won't. I like the new title, and so does Silverstein. . . . He was part of a big MGM delegation to Europe to look over some of the finished films and those still in production. They saw Tony Randall's ABC Murders. And I saw Tony's Seven Faces of Doctor Lao, and loved everything about it, especially when Robert Morley, introduced me as Mrs. Tony Randall. I came in with Tony and Robert is a bit shortsighted, I guess.

Pia Lindstrom, Inga's tall acting daughter, is still wondering what happened to most of her scenes in Zorba the Greek. The way it came out of the cutting room, Pia has an itty bitty part. This sort of thing is always heartbreaking for young—and old—actors.

Bessie Connery, whom we think of mostly as James Bond, will get a real change of pace when he goes to Australia to star with his wife, Diane Cilento, in Call Me When the Cross Turns Over. It will all take place in the bush, 700 miles north of Sydney. With no civilized conveniences at all. Agent 007 wouldn't like that.

The news that Bob Hope will appear on the March 17 Dinah Shore show reminds me that Dinah made one of her first appearances on television with Bob, way back in 1950. That's a long time between shows.

Dr. STUART ROSENBERG Maintains . . .

Children Want Discipline

It sometimes comes as a great shock to parents to learn that their adolescent children actually prefer discipline to unfettered freedom.

Lazy or indifferent parents suppose that by not imposing barriers to license, nor by marking unsavory territories out of bounds, they are pleasing, or at least, appeasing their offspring.

Adolescents are little different than that tiny tot whose nursery teacher worshipped at the shrine of unbridled "progressivism." Each day she insisted that the children do as they pleased—no holds barred.

Finally, one morning, a mischievous lad of four—mischievous because he was bored—came up to his mentor and lipped this query: "Teacher—I'm tired of doing what I want to do! Can't I do what you want me to do, today?"

Many teen-agers are too "sophisticated" to admit to their parents their need for restrictions—restrictions which make sense, and which provide a sense of pride to those who can toe a clear mark.

Yet, those who work closely with them—trusted guides and counselors—often hear them say, in all earnestness: "I wish my parents would set down some definite rules for me—I'd be willing to follow them. The trouble is that I'm bewildered because they're so obviously confused."

"They don't want to hurt my feelings—so they keep telling me to do what I want!" But I'd really like to know what they want! Sometimes, I wonder if they've ever really thought about that!"

Parents confuse a code with arbitrary strictness; and in this democratic age they long to be their children's pals, not their parents. But children want and need parents—they've got their own pals!

Leniency that expresses a parent's trust in his child may work, as long as it is tied into a frame of reference, a well-understood pattern of behavior. But leniency which is only a reflection of the parent's confusion, indifference or inability to think through the serious implications of certain styles of behavior, can only create a lack of confidence in parents on the part of their children.

We need not apologize to anyone if we make specific demands upon our youngsters, or ask them to conform to the moral or spiritual standards we have set for our families.

On the contrary! Most intelligent children sense a need for control and unconsciously recognize that control is an aspect of love. Without control, our children feel rootless, lost and confused.

They begin to wonder what qualifies us as parents, if we have abdicated the responsibilities of sharing their lives and participating in their moral growth.

When our youngsters seem to chafe under the bit, when they keep demanding more and more freedom, let us not be overwhelmed by succumbing to their implacable petitions, thoughtlessly. Often, the child who demands more freedom is actually frightened by the possibility that it may be granted!

When your teen-ager imposes some wildly-exaggerated demand upon you, unconsciously, he may be doing no more than testing your boiling point, wishing that you will be able to withstand his storm and say "No!"—loud and clear, without bucking at the knees!

Primarily, children need to feel that as parents we are not capricious or whimsical—that the standards we impose are standards we ourselves believe in and observe. The chain of family command is no stronger than its weakest link.

Sometimes, sadly, the weakest link is not the child—it is the wily-washy parent.

Red Cross Appeal Seeks $82,000

The Victoria and District Red Cross will march in March. In an effort to raise $82,000, more than 900 canvassers will cover miles of Greater Victoria sidewalks and knock on thousands of doors.

The annual campaign, which begins March 1, will be under the direction of co-chairmen M. D. Ferguson and K. J. Norgaard.

National objective for the campaign is $6,825,122 and the B.C. objective is $653,900. The Victoria objective is $1,500 more than that of last year.

The Red Cross Society may be in a precarious financial position in another year if the increased objective is not met, chairman of the national budget committee W. B. MacDonald said.

Such programs as the Blood Transfusion Service, Water Safety Service, Junior Red Cross, Master and Individual Aid and Veterans' Services could suffer, he added.

GOOD REASON

The 1963 goal is an increase of 2.75 per cent over the 1961 objective.

"In the past years the public has been very good in answering our appeal," a spokesman said. "We hope for similar results this year."

He emphasized that the Victoria Red Cross Society is not connected with the United Appeal through the Vancouver group was.

Campaign will end March 31.

Faiths Complicate Double Identity

AKRON, Ohio—Religious problems entered the case of Omaha television personality John "Frita" Johnson who according to tests might be Lawrence Joseph Bader, who disappeared on a fishing trip in May, 1957, and was declared legally dead three years later. Johnson and his wife Nancy, whom he married in 1951 are "unofficial" members of the First Unitarian Church. Johnson's lawyer says that if Johnson is to remain with Nancy "there will have to be a divorce of some sort."

Mrs. Marylou Bader is a member of the Catholic Church which doesn't recognize divorce and her lawyer says as Johnson was declared dead under a false assumption, "he is therefore still her husband." Johnson is in hospital still undergoing tests to unravel the lost threads of his double life.

LOS ANGELES—Singer Larrin Melchior, 74, has been divorced after a five-month marriage to Mary Markham, 40, his former secretary who is now a television producer. In lieu of alimony, Miss Markham was given a settlement of $20,000 in cash and an $80,000 note to be paid on Melchior's death.

LOS ANGELES—Pretty 18-year-old Roxanne Grebe says she braked her car suddenly upsetting a would-be rapist and escaped after he had cut her several times with a bee-can opener. He had jumped into her car, thrust the opener against her throat and said "Don't scream—you're going with me." She said she tried to attract attention to her plight, "but people would just stare and drive on."

LONDON—The Royal Ballet's new Romeo and Juliet with 45-year-old Dame Margot Fonteyne dancing the teen-age heroine, won ecstatic reviews after a triumphant opening that brought 43 curtain calls.

MOSCOW—Marshal Georgy Zhukov, 68, who was ousted from power in 1957 after a quarrel with former premier Khrushchev re-emerged from retirement to sign the obituary of Major Gen. Ivan Karmannov.

it isn't that Bea Wright, our home economist, is a compulsive eater, it's just that a large part of her job is tasting food. For example she has to cook and bake those tempting recipes she puts out each week (they're yours for the taking). The most important part of her day is taken up with testing the quality of Woodward's brands and new products that we want to make sure are up to our standard before we offer them to you. In this way she and her many assistants get to know a lot about food and its preparation. Try Bea Wright's service this week it's just one of the ways we serve you better.

Grain

WINNIPEG (CP) - Prices were irregular in moderate trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange Wednesday.

After early-trade recessions, Winnipeg prices recovered in reaction to U.S. grain markets buoyed by the tense international situation.

Most activity was in oilseeds. There was international buying in oats, due to recent shipments to Europe.

Rye rallied late, following gains in Chicago.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

Trading Review

Markets Reel Downward

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market, barely recovered from one South Viet Nam war scare on Monday, reeled downward sharply again on similar news Wednesday, compounded by other unsettling reports.

General Motors lost 1 1/2, IBM 7 1/2, and Allied Chemical 1 1/2.

Kraft Pulp Mill Beats Bad Odor

By JACK BUTLER

MEXICO CITY (AP) - A Kraft pulp mill operating in a heavily populated area of Mexico City has proved that bad odors usually associated with such plants can be eliminated if necessary.

It is the Fabrics de Papel Loretto y Pena Pobre, S.A., headed by Mexicans of German descent. It pioneered in many phases of air pollution control after the government told it to clean up or close up.

FOURTEEN PATENTS

Today it holds 14 patents, claims the plant is 90 per cent free of odors, and predicts that with a few adjustments now planned the results will be essentially perfect.

Experts from many parts of the world have visited the mill and studied the methods. All have praised the operation.

in which sulphate is used to engineer Adalberto Tirado Anaya, perfected a system. And the plant still operates in the same place.

The odor control system the three developed is known as the TIT method for Trobeck (now dead), Lenz and Tirado. The firm expects to add to the 14 patents it holds.

REGULAR CHECK

Along with treating the gases to neutralize them, the plant makes a regular check on the atmosphere, knowing that a mistake by an employee, a breakdown of some minor part will bring back the smell.

Since 1959 graphs have shown a decided drop in bad smells. During one month, in fact, odor dropped to zero but scientists haven't found out just why.

GOOD INVESTMENT

The plant, which expects to turn out 110 tons of kraft daily in 1965, spent about 300,000 pesos ($240,000) on research and installations and the owners regard it as a good investment. Operation cost now is negligible and no complaints about smells any more.

Typical of the comments of experts is one from G. S. G. Jones, of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., who says the firm is the "most advanced in kraft mill odor control on the American continent."

Battle in the 8,000-square-mile

Record Budget in Ontario Geared for Human Betterment

TORONTO (UPI) — Ontario's Progressive Conservative government Wednesday tabled a close to one-and-a-half-billion-dollar budget, of which about half was earmarked for what Provincial Treasurer James Allan called "human betterment."

It also served notice that it wants a larger share of the federal-provincial tax pie.

HEALTHY POSITION

As everybody hoped—and expected—there were no provincial tax increases. However, the province won't be living entirely within its means. Allan said the expected 1965-66 revenue of $1,319,500,000 would fall short of requirements by about $141, 000,000.

The budget showed Canada's wealthiest province was in a healthy position and planned to

JOBLESS DECLINE

Allan said that last year the gross provincial product rose by about $1,400,000,000 to $18, 500,000,000. The unemployment ratio declined from 3.8 per cent to 3.3 per cent and the total capital investment was up by $400,000,000.

He noted there will be a transfer of a further share of personal income tax from the federal government to Ontario but warned that a greater amount will be needed.

The budget set aside a whopping $734,000,000 for education, university affairs, health and public welfare. The sum is about the same as Ontario spent for all purposes only six years ago.

In this connection, Allan said:
"Our people must be healthy, competent and productive if the challenges of a growing and rapidly changing economy are to be met successfully."

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Toronto Maple Leafs are willing to keep a Western Hockey League club in Victoria for another season but Stafford Smythe and his associates do not have all the say in the matter. The final decision will be made by the owners of the four American clubs, and what they decide could well depend on how many fans pay their way into Memorial Arena to watch Victoria Maple Leafs play their 35 home games.

It's an involved story. Without any travel or gate equalization pool, something had to be done to keep league strength at six clubs when Denver failed to support a WHL club last season. To induce the Toronto club to continue a WHL sponsorship, the four U.S. clubs agreed to guarantee Victoria gate receipts up to $187,500 this season.

In other words, they will make up any difference between gross gate receipts for Victoria's 35 home games and the stipulated figure, which is just high enough to assure that operational losses should be no more than $50,000.

Smythe has declared his willingness to carry on here for another season if the existing agreement is renewed. The matter is now up to the four U.S. clubs, but even they can have no firm idea on what is likely to happen before the professional hockey meeting in Montreal in June.

Victoria's return to the WHL would almost certainly be a one-season shot should the National Hockey League decide on expansion for next season and include some, or all, of the four southern WHL clubs. And it is doubtful if Victoria, with its small arena, would be included if the WHL should decide to declare major status before the start of the 1965-66 season.

However, there is still an excellent chance that Victoria Maple Leafs will play at least another season.

NHL expansion has to come eventually but it still seems at least a season or two away. And while a delay might mean Los Angeles and San Francisco impatient to get going with plans to declare the WHL a major league, such a move hardly seems advisable until such time as there are major league arenas in San Diego and Vancouver.

That seems even further away than NHL expansion. San Diego's proposed new arena is still in the planning stage, bogged down because of difficulties in arranging financing, and Vancouver, having rejected an offer from Toronto Maple Leafs, is still just talking about the obvious need for a new arena.

Situations, of course, can suddenly change. An unexpected national television contract could bring about quick NHL expansion, and it might even be possible that a second major league could suddenly bloom from an amalgamation between the status-seeking WHL clubs and the more-likely American Hockey League centres. However, this would create a stretched-out league which would have no chance without a national television contract, hardly likely for a league which would be major league in name only for at least five or six seasons.

As matters stand at the moment, there is every chance that the U.S. clubs in the WHL will reluctantly have to mark time for a season or more longer before they can at least state they are major league.

This would mean that Victoria will again have to be considered to keep league strength at the necessary minimum of six clubs—unless, of course, a big loss under the existing agreement causes the four U.S. clubs to cast about for an alternative.

Victoria hockey fans at least can take care of the latter situation. An average of 4,000 fans for the remaining nine home games of the Maple Leafs would be enough to meet the guaranteed $187,500, or come so close that there would be little hesitation about renewing the agreement and giving us at least one more season.

And one more season would be extremely welcome. While there will be those who quibble about the uncertainty of our hockey future and take exception to the manner in which it will be decided, we have to face facts.

The facts are that we are a comparatively small population centre further handicapped by having an arena too small to hold the number of fans needed to compete with such large urban communities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Vancouver. We have no immediate future in any major league but instead of worrying about it we should be pleased at any chance to be included, no matter how long, in what is a calibre hockey league.

One season is better than none, two seasons infinitely better than one. We have had good hockey at Memorial Arena this season, good enough to work at keeping for another season.

Leafs Clout Failing Habitants

Toronto Maple Leafs clouted Montreal Canadiens, 6-2, in a brawling, rough and tumble game in Toronto last night to join the defending National Hockey League champions in second place.

In Chicago, the Black Hawks increased their first-place margin to four points by trouncing Detroit Red Wings, 5-2, for their fourth win in their last five games.

Action in Toronto, bitter from the start, featured a second-period brawl which lasted almost 15 minutes before referee Bill Friday finally got things sorted out.

Smarting from four successive defeats and on their way to a fifth for the first time in 15 seasons, Canadiens touched off the defending National Hockey League champions in second place.

given the Leafs a 3-1 lead. Friday signalled a delayed penalty to John Ferguson for hooking Frank Mahovlich when the big Toronto winger carried on to prop Montreal defenceman Terry Harper into the boards.

Ted Harris, Harper's defence partner, ploughed into Mahovlich to touch off a wild melee in which little damage was actually done to any combatant.

Main action featured Mahovlich against Harris, Harper against Tim Horton, Ferguson against Pete Stenkowski and Ellis against Claude Larose. Stenkowski and Harris later broke away from their initial opponents to have three separate engagements of their own. Nearly all Montreal players and four Leafs left the bench but most of the newcomers went out to act as peacemakers.

Probably for the sake of keeping enough players around to play hockey, Friday ruled leniently. Harris and Mahovlich each got a minor, major and misconduct while minor penalties were handed out to Ferguson, Harper, Stenkowski and Kent Douglas.

Fourteen other minor penalties were called for a total of 70 minutes for the game. Canadiens, shut out twice in their losing streak while scoring but five goals and yielding 23, showed some signs of snapping out of it on occasion but had bad luck, hitting the piping at least three times and just missing on several other good chances.

Hawks, without Bobby Hull, who will miss tonight's return go in Detroit and, probably, a Saturday game in New York, had a 3-0 lead before Glenn Hall lost his shabot.

Tide, UBC Clash In Delayed Game

Victoria's Crimson Tide rugby team Saturday will see whether or not two weeks delay in playing dates will have dulled their efforts to retain the McKechnie Cup.

The Tide meets UBC Thunderbirds at Macdonald Park Saturday. The game was to have been played Jan. 30 but was postponed.

Wings are Jim Ryan and Terry Ryan of Cowichan and Oak Bay's Don Burgess is fullback.

Some Victoria Rugby Union make-up games also are on tap for the weekend. Oak Bay plays University Vikings at 1 p.m. at Windsor Park Saturday. On Sunday, Cowichan plays James Bay at Macdonald Park at 2:30 and University plays James Bay in a second division match at 1 p.m. at Gordon Head.

James Bay won the Times Trophy for the league title last week, not the Colonist Cup as previously reported.

First United Sweeps Trio In Playoffs

First United scored a sweep in three Victoria and District Basketball Association playoff openers at First United last night.

The pre-midnight girls started things off with a 34-4 win over Metropolitan, the midget girls followed with a 26-17 decision over Metropolitan and the juvenile girls closed it out with a 46-23 verdict over St. Ann's Academy.

Pam Morrison and Sharon Wither led the winning juveniles with 12 points each, Irene de Wolfe paced the midgets with 14 points and Laverne Heard and Carol Schanke, with nine and eight points, respectively, were high scorers for the winning pre-midgets. Patty Thurber got 10 of the 17 points for the Metropolitan pre-midgets.

First United has been credited with reviving the Canadian Basketball Association. That was in 1964.

"We suddenly discovered that if we wanted to enter the Olympics we would have to have a national body, so we put this one on its feet."

Kelowna Rink Wins B.C. Women's Curling

KIMBERLEY (CP)—Mrs. Leslie Cmolik led her Kelowna rink to the British Columbia women's curling championship, drubbing the Campbell River entry, 12-4, in a tie-breaking playoff here Wednesday.

The Kelowna ladies topped the coast champion rink of Mrs. Frankie Serjeant after the two rinks finished the regular draws with identical 3-1 win-loss records.

Mrs. Cmolik's four will represent British Columbia in the Dominion Diamond D championship Feb. 25-26 in Halifax.

Mrs. Serjeant drubbed Mrs. Cmolik 12-4 in the morning to pull into a tie with the previously undefeated Kelowna rink.

Also in the morning draw, Mrs. Beverly Reber of Whitehorse topped Mrs. Flo Gustafson of Prince George 3-6. They each wound up their tourney play with one win and three losses.

Mrs. Isabel Morris' Trail rink finished with a 2-2 record.

Canada's 'Mr. Yachting'

scribed as Canada's Mr. Yachtsman, Canada's greatest exponent of junior sailing, and the sport's best troubleshooter, around the Montreal Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, he is the fellow in white with the floppy hat who has been winning all those club races for so long.

Because of his tireless, behind-the-scenes efforts, the Canadian Yachting Association named him an honorary president eight years ago, although he had never held an executive post with the organization.

Yacht clubs in Ontario, British Columbia, the United States and Britain have honored him with life memberships. He has been on the advisory board of the Canadian Olympic Committee for the last 10 years.

One of his greatest satisfactions was election two years ago as the Western Hemisphere vice-president of the International Flying Junior Organization.

Born in Montreal Feb. 28, 1891, R. C. got his first taste of sailing on the Lakhoodah, the Royal St. Lawrence's first flagship, owned by his father, Richard R. Stevenson, rear-commodore of the club which was founded in 1862.

In 1915, R. C. bought a D-class sloop, and in the early '20s purchased Bega, the first B-class sloop of square-bowed sloop type. In 1927 he acquired another sloop type, Bootlegger, and beat the entire Montreal-area B fleet. His victories led to a North American trend in this design.

In succeeding years he owned and sailed an F-class sloop, a V-flyer, two international 14-foot dinghies and a Flying Dutchman.

Stevenson has been credited with reviving the Canadian Yachting Association. That was in 1944.

PORTLAND — San Francisco Seals, trying to make a late run which will allow them to defend their Western Hockey League playoff championship, are having a disastrous week.

On the tag end of a road trip which called for six games in seven nights, the Seals lost their third in a row, 2-5, here Wednesday night and may have suffered a second serious injury in as many nights.

RAD CRASH
Winger Gary Dornhoefer, who had been playing the hockey expected of him after a disastrous start, may be lost to the club for an indefinite period after a third-period crash.

Dornhoefer collided with teammate Tom Thurlby and suffered a badly-cut right eye and, it is feared, a broken jaw. Thurlby was knocked out by the impact.

On Tuesday night in Vancouver, centre Charlie Burns, the Seals' most valuable player, pulled a knee ligament when checked by Canucks' Buddy Boone. San Francisco coach Bud Poile reported Wednesday that it appears as if Burns, leading the club with 27 goals and 38 assists, may be out for the balance of the season.

Beats, 5-6, in Seattle Sunday and 3-5 in Vancouver Tuesday, the Seals opened the scoring but were later victimized by penalties as the Buckaroos scored the next five goals, three of them on power plays.

Play was on the rough side, with 69 minutes in penalties called, and featured a third-period scrap which started between Portland goalie Dave Kelly and Wayne Connelly and quickly included Portland's Doug Messier, who also drew a major penalty.

U.S. Duty

Tourists To Cut Spending?

Victoria merchants fear they may be hard hit by a presidential recommendation that Congress cut the duty exemption on tourist purchases from $100 wholesale to $50 retail.

The recommendation was contained in a recent message from President Johnson to Congress. It is estimated that this would make the new duty-free allowance only one-third of its present level.

DRASTIC EFFECT

Chamber of Commerce president David Lawson felt that this would have a drastic effect on the merchant and a serious impact on the whole community. "Everyone will be affected one way or another," Chamber retail merchants' group chairman John Cunningham said. "Many merchants on Government Street are primarily dependent on the American dollar."

"It won't really affect the gift shops at all," Jack Dixon of the White Heather Gift Shop said.

"The tourists don't buy in large quantities from us and I feel they will overcome the problem."

LARGER STORES

Mr. Dixon felt that the larger stores would be more affected by the proposed cutback.

Miss M. J. Hamilton of the Spode Shop on Government Street said Government Street merchants depend on U.S. tourists for 75 per cent of their trade during the summer.

"It would be a bad thing if they did cut down on exemptions, because no one likes to pay duty."

Marines Called

TOKYO (AP) — Kyoto News Service, quoting Japanese defence agency sources, said about 1,400 American Marines left Japan Tuesday for Okinawa.

Man Admits Guilt On Eight Charges

A 27-year-old Colwood man used bad cheques and phony credit accounts the week before Christmas to obtain about $160 in cash and goods from local stores, city magistrate's court was told Wednesday.

Kenneth Hodges, 291 Rosebank, pleaded guilty to two charges of false pretences and six of unlawfully obtaining credit. The offences occurred between last Dec. 17 and 24.

Using a fictitious name and a genuine Colwood address, Hodges opened credit accounts at the Hudson's Bay Company, 1701 Douglas, Eddy's Ltd., 1651 Douglas, and Bud Bell Men's Wear, 721 Yates.

He obtained clothing and shoes from these stores to the approximate value of $135.

From the Hudson's Bay Company he received $25 in cash by means of two bad cheques drawn on a Colwood bank.

Hodges was remanded until Feb. 16 for sentence.

James F. McCreedy, a sailor from HMCS Antigonish, pleaded guilty to three charges involving a stolen car.

These were car theft, careless driving and driving while his licence was suspended.

Police stopped McCreedy on Douglas Street shortly before midnight Tuesday after he had been seen driving erratically.

The car he was in had been stolen 24 hours earlier from Pat's Auto Sales, 470 Esquimalt. He was remanded until Feb. 18 for sentence.

A 35-year-old Sooke housewife was remanded until Feb. 18 for sentence after conviction of a Christmas Eve shoplifting offence.

Mrs. Amy Louise Hocking pleaded not guilty to stealing a $16.95 Anco camera from Woodward Stores, 3125 Douglas, last Dec. 24.

The woman, who had been shopping with her husband, was carrying the camera and a paid-for article when stopped outside Woodward's by the store detective.

She admitted in court to having the camera in her possession, but said she was looking for her husband in order to get money from him to pay for it.

The camera was to have been a surprise Christmas present for her husband, she said.

Magistrate William Oatler imposed a fine of $125 on driver Richard E. Hoggard, 1112 Empress, after the man pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident. His licence was also suspended.

Harwood collided with a parked car on Bay Street early Wednesday morning. He told police he drove away because he thought he had only hit the car's bumper.

Graham Russell, 380 Merriman, was fined $35 for careless driving.

Russell, who pleaded not guilty, struck the rear of another car while driving on Douglas near the Finlayson intersection Jan. 22.

Engineer's Claim

CPR Chief Blamed For Strike of PGE

A PGE engineer Wednesday blamed CPR president N. R. Crump for a strike which has crippled the provincially-owned railway.

Social Credit MLA D. F. Robinson of Lillooet accused Mr. Crump and his "Window Street boys" of "bitcher-shopper" union agreements.

SPEARHEADED MOVE

Outside the legislature, Mr. Robinson said the CPR president spearheaded the move to wipe out firemen. "Now he wants to wipe out trainmen," he charged.

He told reporters the CPR is pressuring the PGE not to give in to the demands of striking trainmen.

RULES THREATENED

Mr. Robinson, a member of the firemen's union, said outside the House that Mr. Crump is masterminding a campaign to wipe out arbitrators and other rules won by trainmen.

If the trainmen succeed in their demands, it could weaken the CPR's position, the Soledad backbencher said.

He called on Labor Minister Peterson to meet both sides in the dispute, "and I feel sure a settlement can be reached."

Mr. Robinson said both sides have now reached a position where "they are so frustrated they can't talk to one another."

STANDARD DOWN

The Lillooet member told the House that the living standard of railway brotherhood members as an industry has dropped from fourth to 35th place in 30 years.

As an industry, he said, trainmen have suffered, and today "they are in a squeeze."

PRAISES GOVERNMENT

Mr. Robinson also praised the government for keeping the PGE operating and expanding. "Every single railway worker in B.C. is indebted to the policies of this government. As Crump laid them off, the PGE picked them up."

Contract Let For Addition

The construction firm of W. Campbell Ltd. has been awarded the contract for a five-room $30,000 addition to Esquimalt Junior Secondary School.

The Victoria firm is one of nine which tendered for the construction job in January. Notification of acceptance was contained in a recent letter.

Plans and specifications for the school addition have been prepared by R. W. Siddall Associates, architects.

Man Cleared Of Burglary

A Supreme Court jury Tuesday acquitted Robert Peter Martynyszyn, 1731 Mortimer, of a burglary at Newton Garden Apartments, 1720 Newton, Nov. 30.

$1,140 Lost In Envelope

A Ladysmith man has reported the loss in Victoria of a white envelope containing $1,140 in cash, city police said Tuesday.

Jerry Lavine, Ross Hotel, Ladysmith, said the envelope was lost here Feb. 2. It bore Mr. Lavine's name and was stamped Royal Olympic Hotel.

'U.S. Bringing World To Brink of Disaster'

The United States is bringing the world to the brink of disaster by its actions in South Vietnam, New Democratic Party MP Colin Cameron charged Wednesday.

He was opposing Victoria Observer editor Harry Gregson in a debate at the University of Victoria.

Mr. Gregson, arguing against the usefulness of the United Nations, said that the main achievement of the UN has been to hand over more of the world to communism or chaos as a prelude to communism.

POLICY FLOUTED

Mr. Cameron agreed that the UN, like all human institutions, had its shortcomings, but blamed the United States for "folly and imbecility" in "flouting" the neutral policy toward South Vietnam adopted at a Geneva convention.

The other speaker against the UN, Gary Nixon, said that it has failed in its disarmament and peace-keeping functions.

During the Hungarian revolt, "the United Nations talked, giving the illusion something was being done," Mr. Nixon said.

NOT IN CHARTER

He said the world organization was afraid to use force to curtail the production of nuclear weapons, likening it to a "high school or university students' council."

Mr. Cameron pointed out that disarmament is not mentioned in the UN charter and said it would have been an unrealistic goal if it had been included.

He accused the United States and the Soviet Union of dishonesty at disarmament talks.

ADVANTAGE SOUGHT

Mr. Cameron, who was present at this summer's talks in Geneva, said that each nation offered proposals that would leave itself in a preferred position.

The existence of the UN can be justified by the fact that it brings to bear constraints that wouldn't otherwise exist, he said.

John Thies, president of the local Student Nations Association, supported this argument by listing the non-political areas in which the UN has had a great deal of success, such as the World Health Organization.

Trio Flees Fire

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A cattle rancher and his family escaped from a fire which destroyed their home, Brig. W. N. Bostock, his wife and son, 14, fled the blaze early Sunday.

'U.S. Markets Would Aid Prosperity'

Look South, Loffmark Urges B.C.

The power potential of British Columbia is bringing inquiries from people in heavily populated areas all around the globe, members of the Canadian Club were told Wednesday.

"The developments on the Peace and the Columbia together constitute the largest hydro project in the world—two and a half times as big as the St. Lawrence Seaway and developed entirely by this province," said Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Industry cannot develop its low-cost, high-production potential unless it has access to a market of a hundred million or more, Mr. Loffmark said.

That leaves Canada in the position of having to look to United States, Japan or Western Europe.

"In British Columbia we have a tremendous supply of raw materials. Are we going to be an economic backwater or join and trade with a group which can give us all the advantages?" Mr. Loffmark asked.

An alignment with the great market of the United States, for example, will take courage. It will mean a renunciation of old relationships but it can be a matter of survival.

"It will take courage to follow the natural trading routes which, in many cases, run north and south rather than east and west," Mr. Loffmark said.

It is only in this way, however, that the drain on the natural resources of the province can be checked.

Mr. Loffmark foresees the day when B.C. will be exporting mineral concentrates, timber and fish while, at the same time, building up an industrial potential for semi-finished goods.

The combination of tariffs plus high transportation costs has always hobbled industry in Canada, Mr. Loffmark said.

It seemed to him that our first progressive step should be to persuade the United States that it is in their best interests, as well as ours, to abolish or lower tariffs on two items, certain aluminum products and some wood products such as fine papers.

Will Bishop Counterattack?

TW3 on Reconnaissance

By CHARLES LA VERTU

Victoria's funnybone — and perhaps its ego — soon will feel the sardonic, humorous edge of Britain's social comment program, That Was The Week That Was.

Members of the original irreverent London cast will appear for two performances on the stage of the Royal Theatre March 27.

The Victoria performances will end a three-week tour of Canada.

The show is being brought from London by Montreal housewife-impressionist Inge Baber who brought the controversial show The Establishment, which was picketed by a Gulf Island churchman.

Bishop Michael Coleman of North Pender Island decided to picket because of a scene in which the Queen was portrayed giving her Christmas message in "half-courts" and with cold cream on her face.

Mrs. Baber

Mrs. Baber said she came to Victoria a month early in hopes of averting a similar "upsetting" experience.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Baber said the show features two skits in which the Queen is:

● Auctioned off as a head of state to the highest bidding country to solve Britain's economic problems.

● Forced to swim for her life "in a gaily-colored frock" as the royal barge sinks in the Thames during a ceremony.

Bishop Coleman refused to comment.

Producer, director and star of the American version David Frost may appear in the Victoria show, said Mrs. Baber.

"We hope he will be here, but with his commitments — he commutes weekly between London and New York — there is a chance he won't make it," she added.

Others in the cast are William Rushton, Al Mancini, Sandra Caron, Tim Brooke-Taylor, Jean Hart and Bill Odell.

Kangaroo Road Mishap

Langford Man Crushed Under Nine-Ton Tractor

A Langford logger and father of seven was killed Wednesday at noon while unloading a nine-ton logging tractor from a truck on Kangaroo Road.

The body of Herbert Winship, 43, of 653 Strandlund, was pinned under the massive machine for nearly three hours while regular wreckers vainly tried to lift it.

A heavy army wrecker raised the toppled tractor at about 3 p.m. and a doctor, called to the scene by one of the two other loggers in the crew, pronounced Mr. Winship dead. He is believed to have been killed instantly.

OFF TRAILER

The accident occurred shortly after noon about one-quarter mile east of Rocky Point Road on Kangaroo Road.

Mr. Winship was driving the tractor off a low-bed trailer when it tipped over and crushed him, said a family spokesman.

Tools Stolen Worth $500

A thief got away with $500 worth of tools from a garage of a home at 2321 Lee Avenue.

Also stolen were three four-by-10 sheets of plywood.

The theft was reported Wednesday by Alex Cochrane who found the door to his garage had been forced.

Seminar Set For Teachers

The B.C. Educational Research Council is sponsoring a special studies instruction seminar for teachers next Saturday at Victoria High School.

The seminar will discuss preparation of tests, use of literary sources in teaching social studies and research in connection with teaching geography and history.

Pupils Plan Flag Rites

In honor of the new flag Holy Angels School, 888 North Park, has installed its first flag pole and will hold a ceremony at noon Monday.

Sister Mary Theodora, principal, said a choral speaking composition "Our Flag" will be performed and the students, Grades 1 to 5, will sing "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf Forever."

Mine Issue Going to Bennett

Outdoors Clubs Vote To Fight Park Town

The B.C. Council of Outdoors Clubs decided last Wednesday night to ask Premier Bennett to keep the proposed mining town out of Strathcona Park.

The council also went on record opposing the proposed park access road but agreed that, if the road was to be built, profits from trees taken off the road's right-of-way should go to the government.

Both motions were approved at a meeting attended by about 25 representatives of various outdoor groups from all over Vancouver Island.

Drafts of the two resolutions will be sent to all groups concerned and members will be encouraged to write individual letters to the premier supporting the motions.

"NO QUESTION"

C. M. Campbell, Jr., general manager of Western Mines Ltd., which is developing a mine site at Myra Falls inside the sprawling park, told the group "there is no question" that the mine will go ahead.

He said a townsite to house about 700 to 800 people is needed because it is too far to commute the 55 to 60 miles between the park and Campbell River.

GREAT DISTANCES

Several council members disagreed and pointed out several logging companies require their men to commute over great distances daily.

Mr. Campbell maintained the townsite would simply provide a pleasant place for employees and their families to live, as well as essential services such as a store and a school.

SPARK MORE?

But many council members feared establishment of a townsite and an access road would spark more development by other mining companies.

The mining property will be developed as well as possible, Mr. Campbell promised, with careful consideration being given to the surrounding park land.

WITHIN TERMS

He said mining is not a gamble any more in the area and consequently the company intended to operate within the terms and specifications set down by the government.

Mr. Campbell said no mine tailings would be dropped into Buttle Lake and the company will take care not to contaminate the park in any way.

BACK, NARROW

He said the 24-foot road will be kept as far back from the lake front as possible and the road allowance will be kept as narrow as possible.

The manager also told the group the company was legally entitled to develop the mine and the owners had invested money in the area in good faith.

OUTDOORS CLUB

The motion opposing the townsite was introduced by W. H. Warren of the Victoria Outdoors Club who asked the government to enforce regulations for Class A parks to keep the townsite out of Strathcona.

Council chairman M. W. A. James told the group the provincial government will get little more than "peanuts" in revenue from the mine.

Victoria Girl IODE Winner

A Victoria girl has been awarded the $2,000 IODE War Memorial Scholarship, it was learned Wednesday.

It was awarded to Glenys Mae Parry, 21, of 2333 Beach Drive. A student at the University of B.C., she plans to enter Oxford University in the fall, where she will do research in the field of Modern European History.

Many Repair Jobs

Road Renovations Planned in Saanich

A street renovation project on Saanich Road costing $114,000 will be recommended to Saanich council by the public works committee.

This large project heads a list of street repairs totalling $265,000 which will be recommended to council for inclusion in the 1965 budget.

The Saanich Road work would be done from Seymour to Calumet. The road would be reconstructed to 46 feet, with curbs, gutters and sidewalks on both sides.

ROUTE STRAIGHTENED

The Saanich-Tatlayall-Calumet intersection would be redesigned and the main route straightened by the purchase of four lots.

Municipal engineer N. W. Lafford the committee "the continuing development in this area makes this project highly desirable."

Land acquisition portion of the cost on this project is estimated at $40,000.

Another big project, consisting of widening and improving Gorge Road between Tillicum and Harriet, will be referred to Saanich council with no decision from the committee.

This project would cost the municipality $63,000. This is about half the total cost of the project, and it is hoped if undertaken the provincial government would pay the other half.

PROJECTS, COSTS

Other road projects and their costs:

● Cedar Hill Cross Road from Richmond to Shelbourne, reconstruction of both the road and Shelbourne intersection, $33,000.

● Feltham Road from Tyndall to Shelbourne and a strip from Gordon Head west, reconstruction, recapping, smoothing, $29,000.

● Kenmore from Tyndall to Torquay, including completion of a 1964 paving project, $16,000.

● Santa Clara, $2,500.

● Burnside Road from Dupplin to Harriet, tidy up boulevard and parking conditions, reconstruction of Dupplin at Burnside, improve the intersection at Harriet, $54,000.

● Darwin from Saanich Road to Press, minor upkeep, up to $5,000.

● Vernon Avenue from entrance to Public Safety Building to CNR bridge, $7,000.

● McKenzie at Quadra, boulevard work, $1,380.

Queen's Own Eager to Begin Stint on Cyprus

By DON GAIN

Colonist Military Reporter

Even though it's unofficial yet, the 1st Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Work Point, is getting ready to go to Cyprus.

For the past two months the battalion, an UN standby, has been trained in all the aspects of hopping half way across the world with its equipment and taking on the duties of a peace-keeping force.

"We could be on our way to Cyprus in about seven weeks when the UN mandate is up for renewal," said public relations officer Lieut. Gregory Leitch.

"Actually we're ready to go anywhere we're needed," he said, "whether it's Cyprus or any other trouble spot."

To fill the boys in on Cyprus he's preparing a series of papers on the island's history, geography, customs and other subjects.

With all the preparation it's natural that many of the men are looking forward to their new job with excitement.

For some, like Lieut. Raymond Pinner of Montreal, a 1964 graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., and Rfimu. Roger Cameron of Pugwash, N.S., it will be their first overseas posting.

In all 730 men are ready to take off at a moment's notice.

"I almost made it once before with the British army at the time of the Suez crisis," said Rfimu. John Tolley, a records clerk. "I hope I'll make it this time."

He and his wife Sandra came to Canada from their native Halifax, England, in 1957.

"I got off the plane and walked right into the recruiting office in Montreal," he said. "I spent three years with the PPCLI and then transferred to the Queen's Own in 1960 to go to Germany."

Many of the men have had tours of duty in Germany. Some, like Cpl. David Rickman, have had two.

"I think it will be a wonderful experience," said Sgt. Walter Housatchenko.

Sgt. Maj. John Lang will have his wife Olive, three sons and one daughter, aged 10 to 18, waiting for him.

Cpl. Rickman's wife Mary, and twin sons Barry and Bruce, aged 5, will pay a visit to Mrs. Rickman's mother in Calgary while the corporal is in Cyprus.

Foring over maps of Cyprus is Rfimu. Gerald Kendall. He spent five years with the PPCLI, transferred to the Queen's Own in 1960. He'll need to know the roads. He's driver for Lt. Col. C. L. Kirby, the commanding officer.

Jerry Seen In Passing

Jerry Kabiniski, 40, of 48 Oswego Street, was seen in a fight. (An auto body mechanic, he lives at 48 Oswego Street with his wife Verna, and their three daughters, Judy, 9, Donna, 7, and Bonny, 8 months. His hobby is skin diving.)

Regional junior forest wardens camps will be established throughout B.C. this year, to offer camping experiences to young members. The camp at Evans Lake, New Westminster, will be attended by many coastal members.

NEW CLUB
J. A. Meyer, chief warden of B.C., said Mr. Pike will be in charge of the new junior forest wardens club at Metchoin.

Regional junior forest wardens camps will be established throughout B.C. this year, to offer camping experiences to young members. The camp at Evans Lake, New Westminster, will be attended by many coastal members.

LOOK AFTER FARM
"Boys will plant trees, cut limbs, thin out where necessary, and generally look after the tree farm," Mr. Pike said.

Six sisters and their relatives gathered from all over Canada to meet for a holiday on the beach at Waikiki in the Hawaiian Islands. In the background is Hawaii's trademark, famed Diamond Head crater. Dressed in colorful muumuu and pictured in the gardens of the Halekulani Hotel are the six sisters (standing, left to right), Mrs. Alvin Jacobson and Mrs. Will J. Gilmore, both of Vancouver; Mrs. Fred Burdock, Unity, Sask.; Mrs. Alex Horne, Victoria; Mrs. Ed Stitt, Vancouver, and Mrs. Ken Moir, Lakewood, California. Mrs. Moir surprised the whole group by arriving first from California in time to greet them on their arrival by Canadian Pacific Airlines. Other relatives (seated, left to right, are Mrs. James Park, a cousin from Unity, Sask.; Mrs. Mona Marshall, sister-in-law, Vancouver; Mrs. R. J. McKay, cousin, from Tofield, Alberta; Mrs. R. R. Lloyd, cousin, from Unity, Sask.; Mrs. W. Pocock, Vancouver, mother of Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Lloyd. All eleven are staying at the Reef Towers until their return by Canadian Pacific Airlines Feb. 13. They are visiting various scenic spots such as Mount Tantalus, the Nuuanu Pali and Pearl Harbor on Oahu and are planning a short tour of the northern island, Kauai, to see Waimea Canyon, the "Little Grand Canyon of the Pacific."—(CPA Photo).

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband thinks nothing of spending $200 on fishing equipment or $175 on a camera but he will slit a tube of toothpaste down the middle with a razor blade after he has squeezed it to death, to make sure he gets every last ounce of toothpaste out of it.

This man is a busy executive. When I see him spending time in the morning performing this penny ante trick it burns me up.

Last night he was sewing something. When I asked what he was doing he said, "This shoe lace is good for another few months."

What's the matter with him? He's extremely generous about everything else. Can you explain it?—MRS. SKINFLEET.

Dear Mrs. Flint: We all have our pet miser stunts. Your husband happens to be tight about toothpaste. The President of the United States goes around the White House turning out lights. I'm overly-thrifty when it comes to lipstick. If it's a shade I especially like I will use the stick down to the last 64th of an inch. Then I'll go after what's left with a hairpin.

How about you? No pet miser stunts?

Dear Ann Landers: Please

ICEBREAKERS

Icebreakers Club will meet in the Duke of Kent Room, Empress Hotel, from 8 to 10 p.m., Feb. 17. Social evening with tea and coffee to be served. Newcomers and visitors are invited. For further information phone 384-6339 or 383-6221.

don't throw this letter away if you think I sound like a screwball. I need your opinion.

I'm 28, have a good build, and I'm not bad looking. The trouble is my hair has been falling out and I'm getting bald. I've spent a fortune on creams, stimulants, pomades and every kind of treatment you can think of. Nothing seems to help.

Recently a friend told me of a new hormone cream that his brother-in-law is putting on the market. It sounds logical. Listen to this: Not many women get bald because of the hormonal structure of the female. This cream is made up of female hormones. The hormones are actually from female monkeys, not humans, so there is no danger that the user will wind up with womanly ways, if you get what I mean.

Tell me, Ann, do you think cream will help?—WILLING WALLY.

Dear Wally: Yes, it will help—your friend's brother-in-law, if enough suckers buy it he will get very rich.

My advice: Go to your doctor and find out if you have a scalp disease or if your hair is falling out because of nerves.

If the doctor rules out both possibilities, accept your baldness philosophically unless you want to go in for the new trans-planting process which is both time-consuming and costly—but it DOES work.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for six months and I am five and a half months pregnant. We are thrilled but I'm afraid things don't look very good and we want to know what to do about it.

My husband and I were married secretly because we planned to stay in college and get our degrees. When I discovered I was pregnant I told my folks we had been married secretly. They insisted on a church wedding immediately.

Now I'm beginning to look pregnant and the baby will arrive less than six months after our church wedding. When I tell people we were married secretly they give me that "Oh, yes" look and I don't know what to say.

How can I persuade them I'm telling the truth?—PHI BETA DUMMY.

Dear Dummy: Why bother? People who want to think the worst will think the worst. Your real friends couldn't care less.

Couple to Make Home in Manitoba

Victoria shared interest with Kamloops in the recent double-ring ceremony at Sacred Heart Cathedral in Kamloops, which united in marriage Irene Mary Vandean and LAC Thomas Arthur David Miles of RCAF.

Father Emil Sages performed the nuptial mass for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Vandean, Kamloops, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Miles, 439 Richmond Road.

Sisters of St. Ann Convent and the girls from Grade 10 sang during the service and signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in an exquisite gown of white peau de sole with floor-length, slim style skirt featuring a detachable train. Lace enhanced the fitted bodice and extended into skirt and train. A pearl and crystal tiara held the bride's chapel-length tulle veil and she carried a white prayer book, gift of the groom, topped with white carnations and centred with a gardenia.

Mrs. Karen Vandean, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Linda Miles, groom's sister was bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in ballerina-length dresses of deep red velvet and wore matching wedding ring headpieces trimmed with white veiling. They carried white carnations.

Mr. Raymond Vandean, bride's brother, was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were Mr. Jack Ponsioen and Mr. Bill Haywood.

Dr. J. F. B. Bensley proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed in the Crystal Ballroom of Stockman's Motor Hotel, Kamloops. Gold crosses with entwined wedding rings topped the three-tiered cake which centred the bride's table.

For a honeymoon trip through northern B.C. and the lower mainland, the bride wore a mustard colored, two-piece suit with navy and mustard accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home at RCAF Station, Rivers, Man.

Schools Needed

CALGARY (CP) — Establishment of Jewish schools to help maintain Jewish traditions was urged by Mrs. Ben Pearlman, a delegate to the convention of the Federation of Jewish Pioneer Women. She said Jewish culture in North America is at the cross-roads and "It is our obligation to guard against driving ourselves into a colorless pulp." The federation, established in 1925, has a worldwide membership of 365,000.

Valentine Big Business

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—It started as a Roman festival. Then it acquired a religious overtone. Now it is a highly romantic and commercially profitable event. Valentine Day, that is.

In pagan times, Feb. 14 was the day young men selected their brides or drew lots to select a date for the day of festivity.

St. Valentine entered the scene much later. One legend says that while awaiting execution for refusing to worship Roman Gods he fell in love with the jailer's blind daughter.

He sent her a note and signed it — "From your Valentine." This was believed to be the first valentine card.

The wilder aspects of Valentine Day lasted into the 17th century. Samuel Pepys mentions the custom of drawing a girl's name to participate in the celebration.

The Christian Church did not approve of the holiday but was wise enough to add religious significance instead of banning it.

Even today, the lottery exists in an innocent form. Children often bring to school cards which are drawn by classmates who then become their valentines.

Today, Valentine Day has melted, become moral, and turned into big business. Florists greet it with glee; candymakers work overtime. The greeting card makers brace for one of the biggest volumes of business.

One firm, says only Christmas card sales top valentine sales. Jewelers, too, find cause for rejoicing on Valentine Day. It means an upswing in engagement ring sales as well as other costly items.

Sales of charms are one of the most sensitive indicators.

The basic sale of gold hearts—with or without gems—is steady and traditional. Recently, one firm reports, there has been a trend to the more sophisticated.

For example, Feb. 14 brings many requests for a disc which says, in French: "I love you more today than yesterday, but less than tomorrow." That covers all the bases!

Another favorite is a split disc with an almost-severed heart, and the inscription—"Separated, but always together."

Diamond bracelets and pins also do well in this hearty season.

The day also brings out a lot of foolishness and fun. Eastern Airline stewardesses report that more male passengers ask for dates on Valentine's Day than on any other day of the year.

This year, the spring flower promotion committee wants beaux to give bouquets of red tulips on Valentine Day.

This, according to legend makes use of flowers that have been a love symbol for centuries.

The legend: Farhad, a young man in Persia, became enamored of a lovely maiden called Shirin. He courted her with verse and song, but was rejected.

Weeping, he wandered into the desert. Every tear that fell became a red tulip.

Sir John Chardin, in 1653, wrote that "When a young man presents a tulip to his mistress, he gives her to understand, by the color of the flower, that he is on fire with her beauty; and by the black base of it, that his heart is burnt to a coal."

Slacks Vs. Culture

MOSCOW (UPI) — Three Russian women angrily protested a ban against wearing slacks at a club for working people.

In a letter to the newspaper of the Young Communist League, the women said the director of the club forced them to change into skirts when they showed up in slacks.

"You should be ashamed to wear slacks," the director said. "The sight of you interferes with the cultural entertainment of the working people."

Housework Course

EDMONTON (CP)—The Northern Alberta Institute of Technology has begun a 72-hour course to provide trained home-makers to fill job vacancies offered by public agencies and individuals. The women are needed in homes where the mother is ill or at work or in case a family has suffered a death or desertion.

More Adopted

VANCOUVER (CP)—The business of giving away babies is booming in British Columbia. A province-wide recruiting campaign for adoptive parents has been a success, says Mrs. Laura Fowler, placement supervisor. She said 850 more homes were found between April and December last year than in the same period in 1963.

Mother of Three

Hiccups Keep Her From Finding Job

ATLANTA (UPI)—For almost two years, Mrs. Lucy McDonald has suffered the constant discomfort of hiccups, sometimes as many as 90 times a minute. She has been in the hospital twice, consulted a hypnotist and a chiropractor and taken more than 2,000 home remedies.

Some professional help worked slightly, but the hiccups always returned.

Because of the hiccups, the pretty red haired mother of three said, employers will not consider her for a job. If she doesn't go to work soon, she said, the family will be evicted from their tiny apartment.

"I'd give my right arm if I could just go to work," Mrs. McDonald said. "As soon as they (employers) find out that I'm the hiccuping lady they just shake their heads."

Mrs. McDonald worked as a waitress before the hiccups began on July 8, 1963.

"If I don't get a job soon, I hate to even think of it, but I know Larry and Linda will have to drop out of school and go to work," she said.

Larry and Linda are 16-year-old twins. They have a younger sister, Susan, nine.

Mrs. McDonald pays $65 a month rent. Her mother and sister provide the family with food, but they are not wealthy. Mrs. McDonald is divorced and said her former husband is in California and unable to help the children.

"If it wasn't for the kids," she said, "I know I would have committed suicide a long time ago."

"I don't know which way to go now. I guess if I just trust in the hands of the Lord, some how things will work out. I just know it has to."

Home Party

Junior Auxiliary to B.C. Protestant Orphan's Home made arrangements at its recent meeting to hold a Valentine's party at the home for the children.

Plans were also made to hold a rummage sale at First United Church early in the spring. Anyone wishing to contribute to this sale are asked to phone any of the following members: Mrs. B. Patterson at EV 5-5491; Mrs. H. Smart, EV 3-8322; Mrs. M. Dempster, GR 7-2884; Mrs. M. Kennedy, 385-5125.

'Person Unknown' Blamed

By LYNNE WALLER
LADYSMITH — A 69-year-old Ladysmith man met accidental death on night of Oct. 1-2, 1964, "by a fast-moving vehicle driven by a person unknown," a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night.

The inquest into the death of Enni Constantine Mackie on Wharf Road near his waterfront home began Jan. 14 but was adjourned due to new evidence. Asked after the verdict if investigations would continue, Cpl. Kenneth Sutherland, head of the Ladysmith RCMP detachment, said: "Definitely . . . but definitely."

greeted the verdict with: "Possibly some day the truth will come out." Several patrons of the Ross Hotel beer parlor Oct. 1 told the inquest Jan. 14 of two arguments in Finnish between Mr. Mackie and Ladysmith resident Klaus (Red) Johnson, 37, a longshoreman.

An RCMP officer introduced a report from RCMP laboratories which said fibres taken from the bottom of Mr. Johnson's car "could have originated" from a coat owned by Mr. Mackie or another composed of similar fibres.

Mr. Johnson explained he had a similar coat and the inquest was adjourned until it could be tested.

NEW TESTS
The inquest was told last night the two coats "cannot be differentiated" after new tests in RCMP labs.

Mr. Johnson told the earlier hearing he left the pub about midnight or 12:30 and drove to the home of Mrs. Violet Birkeland, a pub patron, where he talked to her daughter Shirley, 15, until about 5 a.m.

INVITATION DENIED
He said he was invited by Mrs. Birkeland to the pub.

RCMP Const. William Ronnenkamp said he and Mr. Inkster drove from the Ross Hotel to the Birkeland home last Friday at 26:30 miles an hour. The trip took five or six minutes.

Cpl. Sutherland and the coroner asked Mr. Johnson several times why the trip had taken him much longer.

'BIT OF TROUBLE'
His first reply was, "I don't know. . . I had a bit of trouble starting the car."

His other replies were, "I don't know." Mr. Johnson, who said Jan. 14 he couldn't recall if Mr. Mackie was at the pub, said last night he could have seen him there.

"I could have said hello in Finnish," he said, "but I don't think there was any argument."

TRIP FOR CHICKENS
Mr. Johnson's wife Annette said her husband had told her he was going to get chickens at Mrs. Birkeland's. Mrs. Birkeland said this was not the case.

Before the jury retired, the coroner said the jurors would "have a hard time trying to appraise who are the liars and who are not . . . I say that charitably, yet honestly."

'BRUTALLY KILLED'
"There is no question this man (Mackie) was brutally killed, hit by a fast-travelling vehicle."

Mr. Inkster continued: "I take a very dim view of a man who would sit up with a 15-year-old girl all night."

He concluded: "The veracity of these people must be seriously questioned."

Naval Tailor Predicts Few Uniform Changes

Integration of uniforms for the armed forces is a long way off, a Nova Scotia naval tailor said in Victoria Wednesday.

"And great consideration will be given to tradition if and when uniform changes do occur," said Claude Vincent of Dartmouth, N.S.

Mr. Vincent is at the Empress Hotel taking orders for uniforms and chair robes. He said he is planning to establish a branch of his business in B.C.

"Preferably in Victoria. I love it here."

Mr. Vincent is filling an order for the prep school at HMCS Naden which will require more than two miles of cloth.

"We carry $30,000 to $100,000 worth of naval cloth alone," he said, "in addition to material for army and air force uniforms. There are about four mills in Britain specializing in this type of cloth. Their delivery is eight to 13 months after we place an order."

"It would take us the best part of four years, if a change were made, to outfit the naval officers on the east coast alone," he said. "It would take a year to turn out the cloth."

He said he had assurances from the defence department that there would be no early uniform change.

One person was injured when a car flipped on Trans-Canada Highway near Helmcken Road

Wednesday night. Miss Claire Latscher of Nanaimo was in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with an ankle injury.

Driver of the car, Cornelius Ham of Port Alberni, was uninjured.

RCMP said the car left 210-sld marks.

The Cerebral Palsy Association has announced a change in the name of the clinic it has operated in Victoria for several years near the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The treatment centre is now operating under the name The Handicapped Children's Clinic because it also provides treatment for children suffering from diseases other than cerebral palsy.

Lamont

Marine Drive Sought By Central Saanich

The provincial government will be asked to build a 'marine drive' to a piece of waterfront property in Central Saanich.

"It's time something was done about this," Coun. Ray Lamont commented at a meeting of Central Saanich council Tuesday.

The government will be asked to build a road to a section of Island View Beach. The section is owned by the province.

The only access to the 2,100 feet of waterfront is a foot-path from Telegraph Road.

Art Exhibit Last Seen Going East

VANCOUVER (CP)—Modern art was up in the air Thursday at the University of British Columbia.

Franksters cut loose a 50-foot cluster of helium-filled balloons being used to support a clear plastic tent called an art creation by its designer.

Jeffrey Lindsay, Montreal structural designer, made the cluster—which he called The Jellyfish—to publicize the 1965 Festival of Contemporary Arts at UBC.

The 51,000 object of modern art was last seen drifting east at an altitude of about 3,000 feet.

Weather officials said the balloons would not be a serious hazard to air navigation because they would rise quickly above operating altitude of aircraft, where they would rupture and drop to earth again.

Girl, 15, Charged In Suicide Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 15-year-old girl is charged with attempted murder after an apparent suicide pact failed.

Police said the girl and a 29-year-old man, both of Squamish, were found unconscious in a Vancouver motel room Jan. 29, from an overdose of sleeping pills. The man is in hospital.

Glass Coming Down

City Greenhouses Slowly Vanishing

By PATRICK O'NEILL

The 'glass' is coming down, in the Victoria-centred Vancouver Island greenhouse produce industry.

Operators have been jumping out of business in the last seven years.

WOULD BE STUPID
"A young man would be stupid to go into the field in Victoria today," according to one operator.

Records of the department of agriculture in Victoria show the greenhouse death toll increases year after year.

The colonist learned the number of growers operating on the island, primarily in Greater Victoria, has dropped almost 50 per cent since 1957.

Total square feet in production in the industry showed a similar drop.

DECLINE BEGAN

The agriculture department's horticulture office said in 1953 there were 210 growers with more than 2,359,000 square feet in the island industry.

These figures remained almost constant through 1957, when the industry began to skid.

In 1964 there were only 108 growers, with less than 1,750,000 feet in production.

Is this a signpost to the cemetery for a once-flourishing island industry?

One official of a large greenhouse produce firm said "for every square foot of glass area that has been taken down in Victoria, as much or double has gone up on the Lower Mainland."

He said 90 per cent of island produce is marketed on the Lower Mainland, and the industry is shifting because of transportation costs.

An official at Creed's Greenhouses Ltd. said "the way the glass is coming down, there won't be enough greenhouses left to employ the people now working in the industry."

He said few men are taking up the trade.

A grower at Snowdrop Greenhouses who said young people would be "stupid" to go into the business, commented "every year taxes go up, the operators get less and less for their products, and they work longer and longer hours for less return."

MORE IN INDUSTRY

An official at Vanisle Greenhouses said "young Chinese don't want to work in greenhouses anymore. Who can blame them? They can make more in industrial work."

He said: "We hire mostly women, some quite elderly, who have recently come from China. We would like to pay wages that attract young people, but we couldn't compete with American growers."

Lower mainland and American competition, transport costs, long hours and increasing taxes: operators blamed these for the ailment of this island industry.

Fugitives Find Freedom Frosty

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Two men who fled a minimum security forestry camp near here Sunday were recaptured after 24 hours of freedom. Garry Dennis Moore, 20, and Gerald Joseph Kosch, 20, got lost in the Chilliwack River valley and suffered frost-bitten feet.

Williston Tells House

Forest Revenue Up 20 Per Cent

British Columbia's forest industries are booming and the government is planning new action to make prospects for the future even brighter, Resources Minister Ray Williston told the House Wednesday.

The minister denied opposition claims of falling forest revenues and produced figures to show the revenues from this primary resource had actually increased five-fold since 1952.

The report of the B.C. Forest Service for 1964, tabled at the end of Wednesday's sitting, showed forest revenues totalling $42,188,034 — up 20.3 per cent over 1963.

STUMPAGE FEES
Timber sale stumpage fees amounted to $37,221,058 of the record revenue total. This represented an increase of 23.2 per cent.

In his speech Mr. Williston also defended the role of the giant forest companies. But he admitted that the small logger with less than $500,000 to invest stood little chance in today's highly competitive industry.

This was the picture the minister painted:

- The present total annual capacity of 3,450,000 tons of pulp in B.C. could easily double in the next five years.

- The 1964 harvest of wood which totalled a record 1,514,593,176 cubic feet, up 2.8 per cent from the previous year, is only half of the ultimate capacity of B.C. forests under the sustained yield system.

- Last year's production of plywood is expected to increase by 120,000,000 square feet to 1,800,000,000 square feet in 1965.

- The industry last year was able to market all the logs it could produce at stable high prices. The fact that log exports from B.C. declined from 52,700,000 board feet in 1963 to 52,500,000 board feet in 1964 was due to high local demands.

- The government will introduce a new system of cutting permits and other regulations to reduce the amount of waste wood.

Mr. Williston said the government is aware that if opposition demands for increased stumpage fees on crown timber are met this could kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"I can assure you we have no intention of doing that," he told the House.

FAIR PRICING

"We will continue our fair pricing policy of tying stumpage to demands for lumber, plywood and pulp products. This protects the public interest while giving industry the opportunity to acquire crown timber at reasonable appraised prices."

Giant of the forest industry like MacMillan, Blundell and Powell River Co. pay their workers the highest wages in Canada, the minister said. They are setting the pace for the rest of the country.

He added that public benefactors like H. R. MacMillan, a director of the company, have poured millions into the community pot including his recent gift of $8,200,000 to UBC.

BASIC EQUIPMENT

For an independent logger with less than $500,000 to invest to achieve the required production standards in coastal forests today, said Mr. Williston, the government would have to build roads and provide basic equipment.

"No live-blooded logger would accept that proposition," the minister said.

Gordon Gibson (N. North Vancouver) said the government was to blame for the plight of the small logger in B.C. today.

Mr. Williston predicted that logs would soon be moved by

Wildlife Film Scheduled Two Nights

The fourth in the winter series of Audubon wildlife films entitled the New England Saga will be presented by the Victoria Natural History Society in Oak Bay Junior High School at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

The color film will be screened by John D. Bulger of Pulaski, New York. It shows the rugged beauty of New England from the mountains to the sea.

Dr. Bulger had a master's degree in education and a Ph.D. in wildlife management. He was a teacher and director of education of the National Wildlife Federation before becoming a lecturer with the National Audubon Society.

Old Clothes Still Needed

Old clothes are still urgently needed by the Victoria branch of the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief.

Donations can be left at The Friends Meeting House, Fern Street, or collection arranged by phoning 478-2714.

Gyros Here Tomorrow

More than 300 members of Gyro District 4 and their wives, will arrive in Victoria Friday for an annual district interim convention.

Members, from Washington, the Mainland and the Island will attend sessions at the Tally Ho and Hollywood House Saturday, ending with an evening dinner-dance.

'Young Offenders Need More Help'

Better juvenile training and treatment facilities are needed to keep young offenders out of prison in future years, the provincial probation service has warned.

The service is investigating ways of narrowing a "wide gap" between returning delinquents to bad home environments or sending them to prison.

Among alternatives being studied are a juvenile "hostel" weekend training program or allowing older juveniles to live on their own under supervision.

Remarks were contained in the annual report of the corrections branch tabled in the legislature.

Liquor Being Found

Thirsty Quebecers Overcome Drought

MONTREAL (CP)—They say you can't keep a good man down and the same may well apply to a thirsty one.

As Quebec's liquor strike rolled through its 67th day Wednesday, it was becoming more and more apparent that the province's drinkers had ceased crying in their empty glasses and were finding ways to fill them again.

And, within reason, no one seemed particularly upset about the change.

Reports were reaching almost legendary proportions of the wholesale import of liquor across provincial borders.

Hotel outlets in eastern Ontario were said to have done an extra $1,500,000 business in recent weeks. Ski resorts in Vermont boasted a 15-per-cent increase in liquor sales. Similar stories were heard from northern New Brunswick.

CARRYING ON

Locally, a surprisingly large number of hotels and nightclubs seemed somehow to be carrying on despite the drought. The stock answer was that they had managed to accumulate "an extra large inventory" prior to the Dec. 5 walkout of 3,200 Quebec Liquor Board employees.

As for the individual citizen seeking a bottle or two, in some cases he didn't have to go farther than the right taxicab. There, for a dollar or two above normal retail price, he could acquire just about anything he wanted.

REPLACEMENT OR MONEY REFUNDED

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Do you find that most of your contracts are lousy? If so, your bidding is much too cautious. Profit-minded players like to be in any game contract that has a 50 per cent chance—which means that they go down quite a lot of the time. Precautionary measures are a will, however, reduce the casualty rate as they did here.

South, with a hand not strong enough for a forcing bid in standard methods, not only opened with a Schenken club bid—he made a jump bid after partner's negative response. South's two spade bids were forcing for one round only, and the bidding could still have died in three spades. However, North expected two of his three queens to be valuable so he made the good bid of four spades, relieving South of any further pressure.

Game would no doubt have been reached by standard methods after a one spade opening. The difference is that when a Schenken system player opens with one spade, you can pass comfortably with a hand like North's, for you know there is a game in the hand. (Strong hands are opened one club.)

Four spades needed careful play. East won the first trick with the heart jack and continued the suit, declarer ruffing. How would you plan to avoid losing three diamonds?

Possession of the diamond nine and ten gave declarer an extra chance. Having ruffed the second heart, he cashed the trump ace and led a trump to the queen. When both opponents followed, South knew he was safe against any diamond distribution. He ruffed dummy's last heart and cashed three rounds of clubs, ending in dummy. Now he had only to lead a diamond from the board and cover any card East produced. If West won he would have to return a diamond or concede a ruff-and-kick.

(A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

The bidding:
South: 1♠ 2♠ 3♠ 4♠
North: 1♠ 2♠ 3♠ 4♠
East: 1♠ 2♠ 3♠ 4♠
West: 1♠ 2♠ 3♠ 4♠

Opening lead: Heart three

Canada Asked to Curb Borrowing

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson, determined to end the United States' nagging dollar deficit, announced counter-measures Wednesday which included "firm assurance" from Canada that it will curb its borrowings.

He also announced other steps affecting Canada directly or indirectly, including higher costs for foreign loans, discouragement of private investment abroad by U.S. business, reduced duty-free exemptions for U.S. tourist purchases and incentives to lure more foreign investment to the U.S. (See Page 17.)

Favorable responses came quickly from top businessmen, and the reaction of congressional leaders was almost wholly favorable.

The package presented to Congress had world-wide ramifications in view of the position of the American dollar as the chief currency.

PARTIAL EXEMPTION
Johnson's main reference to Canada concerned Canada's partial exemption from the interest equalization tax, passed last September. The tax — a maximum of 15 per cent — is on foreign stocks and bonds acquired by American citizens. After special urging, new Canadian issues were exempted.

CLAIMS NEED
Canada argued special need for American funds, both for development and for meeting her own dollar-drain, or balance-of-payments problem.

Said the president Wednesday: "To stop any excessive flow of funds to Canada under its special exemption from the equalization tax, I have sought and received firm assurance that the policies of the Canadian government are and will be directed toward limiting such outflows to the maintenance of a stable level of Canada's foreign exchange reserves." That amounted to a reaffirmation of the Canadian undertaking last year when it received partial exemption.

As expected, after the legislation became law Canadian borrowings in the U.S. leaped, contributing to a serious U.S. drain of dollars in the last three months of 1964.

BOLSTERS CLAIM

The president's package also included various other measures which may affect Canada, all designed to bolster his claim that "those who fear for the (U.S.) dollar are needlessly afraid."

Gordon Foresees Little Difficulty

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon said Wednesday no serious difficulty for Canada appears to flow from President Johnson's new balance-of-payments measures, but Canada won't be left entirely untouched.

He assured U.S. Treasury Secretary Dillon that Canada will not use an exemption granted earlier from the interest equalization tax to borrow funds in the U.S. to increase this country's foreign exchange reserves.

Mr. Gordon said in a statement that the special message to Congress by President Johnson is "reassuring" to Canada. "They are taking extensive measures to deal with their own balance-of-payments situation, and it is clear that in doing so they have taken account of our situation here."

"The trade and financial relations between Canada and the U.S. are so substantial that we could scarcely expect the U.S. to take measures to improve its balance-of-payments which would leave us entirely untouched."

"However, there does not appear to be anything among the president's proposals that will cause Canada serious difficulty."

KEEP EXEMPTION

Mr. Gordon said an exemption for all new issues of Canadian securities from the U.S. interest equalization tax "remains intact."

He told Mr. Dillon that Canadian policies "will continue to be directed towards general stability in our foreign exchange reserves."

Police Action

120 Negroes Marched Three Miles

SELMA, Ala. (UPI) — Sheriff James Clark put 120 young Negroes through a three-mile forced march Wednesday when they turned up to demonstrate for the second time at the Dallas county courthouse.

The sheriff told the Negroes that since they seemed to want to march so badly, he would accommodate them.

"I arrested them for truancy and was going to take them to the Fraternal Order of Police lodge but they escaped," Clark said later.

MOVED AT TEST

The sheriff ordered his deputies to move the demonstrators out. The deputies hustled them off at a trot. Some deputies ran alongside the demonstrators. Others cruised along in cars.

Fresh deputies from patrol cars replaced those who tired.

When the forced march cut through a Negro section many of the youths ducked from the line and started police. Others ran off when the procession reached open country.

DOORS LOCKED

The forced march finally broke up halfway to the lodge, which is six miles from the courthouse. Sheriff's deputies then withdrew inside the courthouse and locked the doors.

Shortly after the march broke up, about 170 more students gathered in front of the courthouse and joined hands in a silent demonstration for 20 minutes.

Police Charge Crowd Few Feet from Queen

EL OBEID, Sudan (Reuters) — Mounted police spurred their horses and lashed out with whips into a packed crowd only a few feet from Queen Elizabeth Wednesday, bringing momentary panic while sheikh and tribesmen paraded.

Earlier some 200 to 300 school children waved their fists and shouted "Down with British policy" and "Down with colonialism" as the 33-year-old Queen and Prince Philip, 43, drove through this western Sudanese town.

It was the only discordant note in the visit, which began Monday.

The crowd panic scene lasted only a few seconds. About 100,000 persons had crammed into a vast arena where one of the most colorful tribal gatherings for many years had assembled. At one point crowds surged dangerously forward.

Mounted police, wielding whips, spurred their horses into the throng to break it up.

Officials Run Train Past PGE Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP) — Supervisory personnel Wednesday drove a CPR train across picket lines of striking Pacific Great Eastern trainmen when regular CPR crews refused to cross the lines.

The crew members earlier had been ordered to take 13 CPR boxcars to the PGE interchange in North Vancouver but the crew stopped at the picket line, then backed the train away. CPR supervisory personnel climbed aboard and took the train through the line.

A report said there was some name-calling as the train rolled through, but no violence.

Labor Minister Peterson Wednesday took personal steps toward settlement of the strike and after whirlwind meetings with both sides had won a resumption of negotiations.

Mr. Peterson presented to a joint meeting of management, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the press, a six-page, 20-point report prepared by Dr. Neil Perry of the University of B.C. in his capacity as special strike commissioner.

Copter Off To Museum

An RCN air-sea rescue helicopter left Patricia Bay Wednesday for Ottawa where it will become an exhibit in the War Museum.

The Pacer HUP-3 is one of three which were retired almost a year ago after more than 13 years' service.

Formerly attached to the navy's VU-33 utility squadron, it is the last helicopter of its type in the navy.

Moscow Epidemic Strikes 500,000

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Unconfirmed reports Wednesday said 19 persons have died in Moscow's flu epidemic and more than 500,000 have caught the illness.

There was no way of checking the reports, which came from usually reliable Soviet sources.

Doctors are taking on-the-spot fines from any barber found to be working without a muslin mask.

Emergency measures city officials have introduced to try to control the epidemic, which started more than a month ago in Leningrad.

Although the outbreak has died out in Leningrad, newspapers report that it has spread to cities all over the European part of the Soviet Union.

Officials have been reluctant to disclose figures or to say how widespread the epidemic has become, but informed sources said it was still raging.

It delivers its message in 60 seconds.

In the next day or so, you may learn something new about the taste of rye whisky. The message takes one minute. And no more than one taste of a whisky called Time. A gentle whisky. The taste is light, warm, smooth. You will find you have never known a whisky with a taste like this. You will find yourself comparing it with the whisky you usually buy. And you may find yourself changing your mind about whiskies. The whisky in the hourglass bottle does that. The message comes through. Not loud. But clear. 60 seconds. Time enough.

Colwood Chamber May Fold

The Colwood and District Chamber of Commerce will fold next month unless it receives some membership support. It was learned Wednesday.

A general meeting of the 80-member group has been called for 8 p.m. March 2 in the auxiliary hall at Dunford and Carlow.

LESS THAN 10 Chamber president Marshall Smith said the group would be disbanded unless enough members turned out to hold the annual elections.

Less than 10 members—not enough for a quorum—turned up at the last two meetings of the chamber.

A chamber spokesman said attendance has dropped sharply in recent years and most of the members simply don't seem interested.

GROWING RAPIDLY "Colwood is growing rapidly," the spokesman pointed out, "and a strong chamber can be very beneficial to the area."

"But if the businessmen aren't interested the chamber might as well fold."

The Letter

Bonner Scored For Inaction

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative
Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner came under heavy fire in the legislature Wednesday for his failure to lay criminal charges in the case of the phony Premier Bennett letter.

Randolph Harding (NDP—Karlo Slesan) said many innocent individuals will remain under suspicion until charges are laid and Mr. Bonner is the only man who can take the necessary action.

"The attorney-general has the case sewed up," said Mr. Harding. "He has the wrong-doer. The confession of a Vancouver man is in his hands. The letter bearing the handwritten signature is at hand."

WITHIN CODE
The case clearly fell within the Criminal Code and provincial jurisdiction, he said.

"I appreciate the interest and sincerity of the member," said Mr. Bonner.

"If I'm called upon to prosecute the case, however, the possibility of seeing that there is a fair trial is not being enhanced by continuation of this discussion at this time."

GOVERNMENT CLEAR
Mr. Harding stressed there were no allegations of wrongdoing on the part of the government in connection with the letter sent to an aide of Prime Minister Pearson on the premier's stationery and purporting to have been signed by W. A. C. Bennett.

The letter is presumed to have been sent in support of millionaire promoter Harry Stonehill's unsuccessful application for landed immigrant status in Canada.

'DISGRACEFUL'
Mr. Harding said the "forged signature of the premier is a disgraceful act" when used in an attempt to influence federal immigration laws.

"No individual, regardless of his position or party, must ever be permitted to curry favor in this fashion. No one must ever

Communists Picket Their Own Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Communist picketed Communist Wednesday.
Pickets from the Progressive Workers' Movement and the Canada-China Friendship Society paraded past the offices of the Pacific Tribune in protest against the weekly newspaper's refusal to publish an advertisement of a public meeting.
In a statement, the newspaper said a speaker to be featured at the meeting "invariably puts forward the Peking line of division and disruption."

Jacques and Gendarme on run

He Ran for Life— But Did He Win?

DOMPIERRE-LES-EGLESES, France—Jacques Rossignol literally ran for his life here Tuesday—and doesn't know yet whether he won.

Rossignol has pleaded innocent of complicity in the murder of garage owner Raymond Vignaud last Dec. 18.

Investigation fixed the time of death at 7:30 p.m., but Rossignol said when he and two others were arrested that he was in Montmorillon, 32 miles away, at the time.

One defendant said he drove Rossignol to Montmorillon, and left him to go 800 yards on foot to the home of a witness who saw him at 7:35 p.m.

In a re-enactment, a car drove between the two towns in 22 minutes, 15 seconds. Then Rossignol, roped and paced by a policeman, ran the 800 yards in four minutes.

He said this proved his innocence but a magistrate murmured, saying the slaying perhaps occurred 10 minutes before 7:30 p.m.—which would ruin Rossignol's alibi.

A decision is awaited.

Ping-Pong War ANOTHER JET STRIKE EXPECTED

(From AP, Reuters, UPI)

Communist guerrillas attempted an amphibious assault on the port town of Qui Nhon today only hours after Viet Cong suicide squads blew up a U.S. Army barracks housing at least 40 Americans. It was feared that as many as 26 Americans may have died in the blast.

Another U.S. air strike at North Viet Nam appeared imminent in retaliation for the Viet Cong bombing. The new attack came as latest figures in the barracks explosion listed three Americans known dead, 17 wounded and 20 to 25 missing.

The attacking guerrillas today, aboard 50 armed junks, were driven back by fire from American helicopters as the Viet Cong tried to swarm ashore less than 200 yards from the destroyed billet.

Col. Theodore Matusis, commander of American forces in Qui Nhon, said the Viet Cong apparently tried to use a human shield of 400 Vietnamese civilians in order to get onto the beach.

He said his helicopters hovered overhead while artillerymen fired rounds across the path of the junks in an effort to stop them.

In Washington, top U.S. officials hinted strongly that the raid would be announced later in the day. It will be the third since Sunday.

Several U.S. Navy combat jets from 7th Fleet carriers landed at the Da Nang air base—usually a sign that air strikes outside South Viet Nam are in the making.

President Johnson met in a Washington emergency session with the National Security Council, but gave no hints about U.S. reprisals for the billet blast.

Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, and U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor went to Saigon Airport to see off a group of 150 American women and children being evacuated under President Johnson's order for withdrawal of dependents from the country.

There were developments on other fronts as Radio Hanoi, in the North Viet Nam capital, urged the guerrillas in South Viet Nam to "strike hard, very hard, at the enemy on all battlefields."

About 600 South Vietnamese government troops were wiped out in the northeast Binh Dinh Mountains in one of the worst defeats of the war.

Four U.S. Army advisers were missing after a Viet Cong band attacked a town 60 miles north of Saigon.

The roll of American combat dead rose to 268 with the killing of a helicopter crewman and the death of a captain wounded Monday.

Qui Nhon, scene of the barracks bombing, is 80 miles east of Pleiku, where a Viet Cong attack on U.S. installations Sunday touched off retaliatory strikes by U.S. and South Vietnamese war planes at targets in North Viet Nam.

There was prompt world reaction to latest developments in South Viet Nam.

B.C. Fraud Case

Constable Sent to Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An RCMP constable was sentenced here Wednesday to two months in jail after he pleaded guilty to fraud in the handling of meal accounts for prisoners at the jail here.

Const. A. G. Kemp, 35, was one of four men — two other RCMP constables and a restaurant owner — charged with fraud.

POSTED BOND
The restaurant owner, Low Kut Sing, 69, also pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence. Magistrate Harvey Jessop ordered Low released after he posted a $500 peace bond.

A stay of proceedings was ordered for Const. W. L. Giesbrecht, 27, who is in a Vancouver hospital with a serious head wound.

GRAVELY WOUNDED

Prosecutor Ernest Alexander of Vancouver told the court the constable is so gravely wounded he may "never be fit to conduct his affairs."

The constable's wife found him unconscious with a bullet wound in the head in their Grand Forks, B.C., home last August.

AWAITS LAWYER

Const. W. S. Austin, 26, the fourth man charged, was granted an adjournment to Feb. 23 pending the arrival of his lawyer.

Mr. Alexander said between April 1963 and July 1964 there was an over-payment in the meal accounts to Low's Grand Cafe from the Prince Rupert jail of $3,468.

Arms for Israel Stopped by Bonn

BONN (Reuters) — Eugen Gerstenmaier, president of the Bundestag, said Wednesday West Germany has decided to stop its arms aid to Israel. The decision follows a threat by Egypt to break off diplomatic relations with Bonn if the deliveries continued.

Dorion Witness Recalled

Calls 'Forgotten'

OTTAWA (CP) — Testimony about a telephone call from the Chateau Laurier Hotel room of self-described Liberal organizer Guy Masson to the number of a security agency of the defence department was given to the Dorion inquiry Wednesday.

Herman Falls, manager of the Chateau, said hotel records show that a call was made July 14 at 11:57 a.m. from Masson's room to federal government number 99-26361.

This is the number listed since 1962 in the defence department telephone directory for the security and administration of the branch of the RCAF directorate of air intelligence.

A reporter's call to the number Wednesday brought the reply "air intelligence."

Masson, recalled to the witness box after an interval of three weeks, was not asked by any counsel to say whether he had made the call himself or to explain it.

Mr. Falls testified that the call to 99-26361 was followed immediately by one to 99-23234, the unlisted parliamentary number used by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

Purity His Pledge

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Faurneau pledged Wednesday night that the new Quebec section of the federal Liberal party will be "above normal reproach."

"Personally, I shall tolerate no form of corruption or influence-peddling whatever," he said in a speech to the Reform Club.

"The Quebec section of the Liberal Federation of Canada will mirror the image of a party we are all proud of—an honest party for honest citizens."

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Carson, 27, described in court as "a genius" won a chance to realize his potential Wednesday when a charge against him of being a habitual criminal was dismissed.

Malcolm Black, artistic director of the playhouse company of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, testified: "He is, in my opinion, a genius. One day he may become one of the most brilliant writers in Canada."

Carson, serving a two-year sentence for bad-cheque offences, admitted to 85 charges during the last 10 years, most of them for passing bad cheques.

Mr. Black said he had seen seven plays and a number of sketches produced by Carson in prison and that it was his intention to have Carson join his company as an apprentice playwright when he leaves prison.

Two of Carson's paintings were exhibited in court.

Magistrate Cyril White ruled: "This offender has something to offer to society and it would be tragic if this potential is not realized."

Student Rioters in India Burn Police to Death

MADRAS (UPI) — Two police inspectors were burned to death and at least 19 other persons killed Wednesday in student riots protesting the use of Hindi as India's national language.

Hundreds were injured in the mob action in Madras state.

Ten students were killed by police bullets in the Coimbatore district when they stormed a textile mill.

Indian Army units were ordered into four areas to halt the rampaging students. Hindi, the language of North Central India, was made the national tongue.

Frenzied students attacked the two policemen in Coimbatore, 350 miles southwest of here, stoning and then setting them afire as they lay by the roadside. The two victims became human torches.

There was full-scale rioting in five cities of Madras state.

Four persons were killed in Tiruppur, about 300 miles southwest of Madras. Two students succumbed at the town of Tiruthengode. The total number of wounded was not known but reports indicated there were many casualties in the fighting between rioters and club and pistol-carrying police.

About 3,000 students tried to storm the police station at Tiruthengode. The police opened fire when they attempted to steal firearms.

During the fighting at Tiruppur, riot participants cut communication lines between that city and Madras.

Soviet Trawlers Lost in Storm

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Four Soviet fishing trawlers were lost in a storm in the Bering Sea off Russia's northeast coast Jan. 19, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Wednesday. The number of lives lost was not disclosed.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Toronto Maple Leafs are willing to keep a Western Hockey League club in Victoria for another season but Stafford Smythe and his associates do not have all the say in the matter. The final decision will be made by the owners of the four American clubs, and what they decide could well depend on how many fans pay their way into Memorial Arena to watch Victoria Maple Leafs play their 35 home games.

It's an involved story. Without any travel or gate equalization pool, something had to be done to keep league strength at six clubs when Denver failed to support a WHL club last season. To induce the Toronto club to continue a WHL sponsorship, the four U.S. clubs agreed to guarantee Victoria gate receipts up to $187,500 this season.

In other words, they will make up any difference between gross gate receipts for Victoria's 35 home games and the stipulated figure, which is just high enough to assure that operational losses should be no more than $50,000.

Smythe has declared his willingness to carry on here for another season if the existing agreement is renewed. The matter is now up to the four U.S. clubs, but even they can have no firm idea on what is likely to happen before the professional hockey meeting in Montreal in June.

Victoria's return to the WHL would almost certainly be a one-season shot should the National Hockey League decide on expansion for next season and include some, or all, of the four southern WHL clubs. And it is doubtful if Victoria, with its small arena, would be included if the WHL should decide to declare major status before the start of the 1965-66 season.

However, there is still an excellent chance that Victoria Maple Leafs will play at least another season.

NHL expansion has to come eventually but it still seems at least a season or two away. And while a delay might make Los Angeles and San Francisco impatient to get going with plans to declare the WHL a major league, such a move hardly seems advisable until such time as there are major league arenas in San Diego and Vancouver.

That seems even further away than NHL expansion. San Diego's proposed new arena is still in the planning stage, bogged down because of difficulties in arranging financing, and Vancouver, having rejected an offer from Toronto Maple Leafs, is still just talking about the obvious need for a new arena.

Situations, of course, can suddenly change. An unexpected national television contract could bring about quick NHL expansion, and it might even be possible that a second major league could suddenly bloom from an amalgamation between the status-seeking WHL clubs and the more-likely American Hockey League centers. However, this would create a stretched-out league which would have no chance without a national television contract, hardly likely for a league which would be major league in name only for at least five or six seasons.

As matters stand at the moment, there is every chance that the U.S. clubs in the WHL will reluctantly have to mark time for a season or more longer before they can at least state they are major league.

This would mean that Victoria will again have to be considered to keep league strength at the necessary minimum of six clubs—unless, of course, a big loss under the existing agreement causes the four U.S. clubs to cast about for an alternative.

Victoria hockey fans at least can take care of the latter situation. An average of 4,000 fans for the remaining nine home games of the Maple Leafs would be enough to meet the guaranteed $187,500, or come no close that there would be little hesitation about renewing the agreement and giving us at least one more season.

And one more season would be extremely welcome. While there will be those who quibble about the uncertainty of our hockey future and take exception to the manner in which it will be decided, we have to face facts.

The facts are that we are a comparatively small population centre further handicapped by having an arena too small to hold the number of fans needed to compete with such large urban communities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Vancouver. We have no immediate future in any major league but instead of worrying about it we should be pleased at any chance to be included, no matter for how long, in what is a calibre hockey league.

One season is better than none, two seasons infinitely better than one. We have had good hockey at Memorial Arena this season, good enough to work at keeping for another season.

High School Girls To Stage Tourney

Lower Island high school girls' basketball tournament will be held Friday and Saturday at Oak Bay High School. Out of the tournament will come three teams who will then play in the Island final scheduled for Courtenay in two weeks.

First game Friday, at 5 p.m., sees Mount View playing North Saanich, Victoria plays Belmont at 6:15, Esquimalt and Claremont clash at 7:30 and Oak Bay and St. Ann's play at 8:45. Saturday's first game starts at 10:30 a.m. with the final of the double knockout series at 8:45 p.m.

Shawnigan Lake Nips Ladysmith

LADYSMITH — Shawnigan Lake defeated Ladysmith High School, 51-49, in boys basketball here Tuesday night.
Robin Creighton led the winners with 15 points. Battle of Ladysmith counted 20.

Hawks Singe Wings

Leafs Clout Failing Habitants

Toronto Maple Leafs clouted Montreal Canadiens, 6-2, in a brawling, rough and tumble game in Toronto last night to join the defending National Hockey League champions in second place.

In Chicago, the Black Hawks increased their first-place margin to four points by trouncing Detroit Red Wings, 5-2, for their fourth win in their last five games.

Action in Toronto, bitter from the start, featured a second-period brawl which lasted almost 15 minutes before referee Bill Friday finally got things sorted out.

Smarting from four successive defeats and on their way to a fifth for the first time in 15 seasons, Canadiens touched off the free-for-all and were loathe to discontinue the unscheduled action.

Trouble erupted just after two goals by rookie Ron Ellis had given the Leafs a 3-1 lead. Friday signalled a delayed penalty to John Ferguson for hooking Frank Mahovlich when the big Toronto winger carried on to trip Montreal-defenceman Terry Harper into the boards.

Ted Harris, Harper's defence partner, ploughed into Mahovlich to touch off a wild melee in which little damage was actually done to any combatant.

Main action featured Mahovlich against Harris, Harper against Tim Horton, Ferguson against Pete Stenkowski and Ellis against Claude Larose.

Stenkowski and Harris later broke away from their initial opponents to have three separate engagements of their own. Nearly all Montreal players and four Leafs left the bench but most of the newcomers went out to act as peacemakers.

Probably for the sake of keeping enough players around to play hockey, Friday ruled leniently. Harris and Mahovlich each got a minor, major and misconduct while minor penalties were handed out to Ferguson, Harper, Stenkowski and Kent Douglas.

Fourteen other minor penalties were called for a total of 70 minutes for the game.

Canadiens, shut out twice in their losing streak while scoring but five goals and yielding 23, showed some signs of snapping out of it on occasion but had bad luck, hitting the piping at least three times and just missing on several other good chances.

Hawks, without Bobby Hull, who will miss tonight's return game in Detroit and, probably, a Saturday game in New York, had a 5-0 lead before Glenn Hall lost his shutout.

PORTLAND — San Francisco Seals, trying to make a late run which will allow them to defend their Western Hockey League playoff championship, are having a disastrous week.

On the tag end of a road trip which called for six games in seven nights, the Seals lost their third in a row, 2-5, here Wednesday night and may have suffered a second serious injury in as many nights.

RAD CRASH
Winger Gary Dornhoefer, who had been playing the hockey expected of him after a disastrous start, may be lost to the club for an indefinite period after a third-period crash.

Dornhoefer collided with teammate Tom Thurlby and suffered a badly-cut right eye and, it is feared, a broken jaw. Thurlby was knocked out by the impact.

BURNS OUT

On Tuesday night in Vancouver, centre Charlie Burns, the Seals' most valuable player, pulled a knee ligament when checked by Canucks' Buddy Boone. San Francisco coach Bud Poole reported Wednesday that it appears as if Burns, leading the club with 27 goals and 38 assists, may be out for the balance of the season.

Beaten, 5-6, in Seattle Sunday and 3-5 in Vancouver Tuesday, the Seals opened the scoring but were later victimized by penalties as the Buckaroos scored the next five goals, three of them on power plays.

ROUGH GAME

Play was on the rough side, with 60 minutes in penalties called, and featured a third-period scrap which started between Portland goalie Dave Kelly and Wayne Connolly and quickly included Portland's Doug Messier, who also drew a major penalty.

railed out. Since that time the Victorians have had two more weeks to get more cohesion into their all-star team. They have a final practice tonight.

NEW PLAYER

The Tide, however, has lost second row player Gordon Payette, an RCN apprentice, who has had to rejoin his ship at sea. The Tide therefore has moved Bob Coutts back to second row and installed Dick Smith of Oak Bay Wanderers at the prop position.

CALGARY (CP) — Dorothy Thompson of Edmonton captured her fifth Alberta women's curling championship Wednesday as she completed a double round-robin playoff undefeated.

Kelowna Rink Wins B.C. Women's Curling

KIMBERLEY (CP) — Mrs. Leslie Cmolik led her Kelowna rink to the British Columbia women's curling championship, drubbing the Campbell River entry, 12-4, in a tie-breaking playoff here Wednesday.

The Kelowna ladies topped the coast champion rink of Mrs. Frankie Serjeant after the two rinks finished the regular draws with identical 3-1 win-loss records.

Mrs. Cmolik's four will represent British Columbia in the Dominion Diamond D championship Feb. 22-26 in Halifax.

Mrs. Serjeant drubbed Mrs. Cmolik 13-2 in the morning to pull into a tie with the previously undefeated Kelowna rink.

Also in the morning draw, Mrs. Beverly Reber of Whitehorse topped Mrs. Flo Gustafson of Prince George 5-6. They each wound up their tourney play with one win and three losses.

Mrs. Isabel Morris "Trail" rink finished with a 2-3 record.

Canada's 'Mr. Yachting'

R.C. Sails On, Spreading His Gospel

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—If a pick-pocket were to rob R. C. Stevenson, his loot probably would be pictures of racing sloops. Stevenson's pockets constantly bulge with them.

The walls of his office are hidden by framed pictures of yachts. And in one corner stands a model barque made by a dying seaman from the breastbone of a turkey.

Since the age of 12 when he sailed a 12-foot cat dinghy, one of the first such boats made in Canada, Reginald Crawford Stevenson, now 73, has been remarkably dedicated to the sport of sailing.

He still races competitively, after 52 years, in Deb III, the third of his Dragon-class sloops named after granddaughter Deborah because "they are both beautiful."

And he still travels across the country several times a year promoting sailing among those who will listen. He has been variously described as Canada's Mr. Yachting, Canada's greatest exponent of junior sailing, and the sport's best troubleshooter. Around the Montreal Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, he is the fellow in white with the floppy hat who has been winning all those club races for so long.

TRAVELS WIDELY
Outside Montreal, R. C., as he is known, is the man who comes around once or twice a year with sailing information, ideas and advice.

He has been touring yacht clubs since 1933, all on his own and without remuneration.

"I have to go across the country on business all the time and that gives me an opportunity to meet with the yachting fraternity."

A chartered accountant, he is a member of the firm of Stevenson, Walker, Knowles and Company, part of a 40-office chain across the country that represents an amalgamation of four national firms.

Stevenson conceived, and then put into force, the annual national sailing championships for boy scouts and naval cadets. The best two-man crew from each province is invited to the finals in each class after regional trials. He is vice-president of the national council of the Boy Scouts of Canada.

Because of his tireless, behind-the-scenes efforts, the Canadian Yachting Association named him an honorary president eight years ago, although he had never held an executive post with the organization.

Yacht clubs in Ontario, British Columbia, the United States and Britain have honored him with life memberships. He has been on the advisory board of the Canadian Olympic Committee for the last 10 years.

INTERNATIONAL POST
One of his greatest satisfactions was election two years ago as the Western Hemisphere vice-president of the International Flying Junior Organization.

Born in Montreal Feb. 28, 1931, R. C. got his first taste of sailing on the lakewood, the Royal St. Lawrence's first flag-ship, owned by his father, Richard R. Stevenson, rear-commodore of the club which was founded in 1882.

In 1915, R. C. bought a D-class sloop, and in the early '20s purchased Bega, the first B-class ship of aqua-bowed sloop type. In 1927 he acquired another sloop type, Bootlegger, and beat the entire Montreal-area B fleet. His victories led to a North American trend in this design.

In succeeding years he owned and sailed an F-class sloop, a Y-flyer, two international 14-foot dinghies and a Flying Dutchman.

Stevenson has been credited with reviving the Canadian Yachting Association. That was in 1948.

"We suddenly discovered that if we wanted to enter the Olympics we would have to have a national body. So we put this one on his feet."

His son, Richard, 40, has an impressive sailing record in the international 14-foot dinghy class division. He has seven grandchildren.

Although R. C. has won many races, he has never captured a major title, but it doesn't bother him. "I get the sun and the air and I meet a lot of fine people."

Inspectors' Dispute

Labor Urges Peterson To Intervene

PORT ALBERNI — The Port Alberni District Labor Council asked Labor Minister Peterson in a telegram Wednesday to intervene in the lumber inspectors' dispute which could become a strike Tuesday.

Labor council officials announced delegates authorized the appeal to Mr. Peterson at their meeting Tuesday night in view of the imminence of the strike date and the fact all IWA members will be affected. The telegram urges Mr. Peterson to use his office to attempt to bring about a settlement which will protect the Pacific Lumber Inspection Board members and maintain proper grade standards for all B.C. export lumber.

Trustees Tour Schools

LAKE COWICHAN — Eight members of the Cowichan Lake district school board, six of them trustees, went on a familiarization tour of all district schools Wednesday, starting at 8 a.m. Making the tour in private cars were trustees Mrs. George Budden, Mrs. David Sharp, D. S. Hammond, Alec Walker, H. B. Gibson and H. E. Hobson, district schools superintendent R. S. Price and board secretary-treasurer G. M. A. Rooke.

BUDGET NEEDS — The group inspected school buildings and grounds and spoke to teachers about budget needs for the coming year.

All eight visited Nitinat, Cayuse, Honeymoon Bay and Mesachie Lake schools.

Trustees Hobson, Gibson and Hammond, the buildings and grounds committee, then left to investigate a drainage problem at Cowichan Lake Secondary School and rejoined the others at the Yount school in Youbou.

Seminar Set For Teachers

The B.C. Educational Research Council is sponsoring a social studies instruction seminar for teachers next Saturday at Victoria High School.

The seminar will discuss preparation of tests, use of literary sources in teaching social studies and research in connection with teaching geography and history.

just around a corner from the Ben Bow Inn resort, which was vacant when it was destroyed in a fire of unknown origin about three weeks ago.

Cause of the service station fire also is not reported.

Mr. McRae, his wife and their son Don were unhurt in their nearby home. Firemen concentrated on saving the home, which is partly protected by a large cedar tree between it and the station.

The service station was destroyed in about an hour and the loss was only partly insured. Included in the loss is the station office, a repair shop and a car owned by the McRae's son.

Only the gasoline pumps were left untouched by the flames.

Probation Violator Sent to Jail

COURTENAY — City resident Michael Davis has been sentenced in magistrate's court to 30 days in jail for violating restrictions laid down last August when he was given a nine-month suspended sentence for theft under $50.

He failed to report to his probation officer and was recently convicted in Trail of assault causing bodily harm. For the latter, he was given six months definite and six months indeterminate, a sentence to which the 30-day term was added.

Duncan Man Will Carve 52-Foot Canoe

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Leonard Antoine, 36, a Duncan forest nursery employee who lives on the Cowichan Indian reserve, has a big job ahead of him.

Although he has had no experience in the field, he has decided to carve a 52-foot, 11-man Indian war canoe.

He started to shape the rough form out of a 60-foot cedar log two weeks ago and hopes to complete the canoe in time for the 1965 Cowichan Indian war canoe races.

The log was donated late last year by the Nanaimo Lakes division of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. It was moved here free of charge by Doman's Transport and unloaded, also free of charge, by service station operator Jack Romendag.

"I am very, very grateful to these people," said Mr. Antoine.

The new carver says his brother Patrick, 23, will help him occasionally with the canoe.

Before he started work with axe and power saw, Mr. Antoine gathered much information from oldtime canoe builders Jester Tom of Nanaimo River and Thomas Seyward of Nanaimo.

Ladysmith Inquest Verdict:

'Person Unknown' Drove Death Car

By LYNNE WALLER

LADYSMITH — A 69-year-old Ladysmith man met accidental death on night of Oct. 1-2, 1964, "by a fast-moving vehicle driven by a person unknown," a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night.

The inquest into the death of Emil Constantine Mackie on Wharf Road near his waterfront home began Jan. 14 but was adjourned due to new evidence.

Asked after the verdict if investigations would continue, Cpl. Kenneth Sutherland, head of the Ladysmith RCMP detachment, said: "Definitely... but definitely."

'SOME DAY'

Coroner Russell Inkster greeted the verdict with: "Possibly some day the truth will come out."

Several patrons of the Ross Hotel beer parlor Oct. 1 told the inquest Jan. 14 of two arguments in Finnish between Mr. Mackie and Ladysmith resident Klaus (Red) Johnson, 37, a longshoreman.

SIMILAR FIBRES

An RCMP officer introduced a report from RCMP laboratories which said fibres taken from the bottom of Mr. Johnson's car "could have originated" from a coat owned by Mr. Mackie or another composed of similar fibres.

Mr. Johnson explained he had a similar coat and the inquest was adjourned until it could be tested.

NEW TESTS

The inquest was told last night the two coats "cannot be differentiated" after new tests in RCMP labs.

Mr. Johnson told the earlier hearing he left the pub about midnight or 12:30 and drove to the home of Mrs. Violet Birkeland, a pub patron, where he talked to her daughter Shirley, 15, until about 5 a.m.

INVITATION DENIED

He said he was invited but Mrs. Birkeland denied it. RCMP Const. William Ronnenkamp said he and Mr. Inkster drove from the Ross Hotel to the Birkeland home last Friday at 25-30 miles an hour. The trip took five or six minutes.

Cpl. Sutherland and the coroner asked Mr. Johnson several times why the trip had taken him much longer.

'BIT OF TROUBLE'

His first reply was: "I don't know... I had a bit of trouble starting the car."

His other replies were: "I don't know."

Mr. Johnson, who said Jan. 14 he couldn't recall if Mr. Mackie was at the pub, said last night he could have seen him there.

"I could have said hello in Finnish," he said, "but I don't think there was any argument."

TRIP FOR CHICKENS

Mr. Johnson's wife Annette said her husband had told her he was going to get chickens at Mrs. Birkeland's. Mrs. Birkeland said this was not the case.

Before the jury retired, the coroner said the jurors would "have a hard time trying to appraise who are the liars and who are not... I say that charitably, yet honestly."

'BRUTALLY KILLED'

"There is no question this man (Mackie) was brutally killed, hit by a fast-travelling vehicle."

Mr. Inkster continued: "I take a very dim view of a man who would sit up with a 15-year-old girl all night."

He concluded: "The veracity of these people must be seriously questioned."

Outdoors Clubs Vote To Fight Park Town

The B.C. Council of Outdoors Clubs decided here Wednesday access road but agreed that, if the road was to be built, profits from trees taken off the road's right-of-way should go to the government.

Both motions were approved at a meeting attended by about 25 representatives of various outdoor groups from all over Vancouver Island.

Drafts of the two resolutions will be sent to all groups concerned and members will be encouraged to write individual letters to the premier supporting the motions.

'NO QUESTION'

C. M. Campbell, Jr., general manager of Western Mines Ltd., which is developing a mine site at Myra Falls inside the sprawling park, told the group "there is no question" that the mine will go ahead.

He said a townsite to house about 700 to 800 people is needed because it is too far to commute the 55 to 60 miles between the park and Campbell River.

GREAT DISTANCES

Several council members disagreed and pointed out several logging companies require their men to commute over great distances daily.

Mr. Campbell maintained the townsite would simply provide a pleasant place for employees and their families to live, as well as essential services such as a store and a school.

SPARK MORE?

But many council members feared establishment of a townsite and an access road would spark more development by other mining companies.

The mining property will be developed as well as possible, Mr. Campbell promised, with careful consideration being given to the surrounding park land.

WITHIN TERMS

He said mining is not a gamble any more in the area and consequently the company intended to operate within the terms and specifications set down by the government.

Mr. Campbell said no mine tailings would be dropped into Buttle Lake and the company will take care not to contaminate the park in any way.

BACK, NARROW

He said the 24-foot road will be kept as far back from the lake front as possible and the road allowance will be kept as narrow as possible.

The manager also told the group the company was legally entitled to develop the mine and the owners had invested money into the area in good faith.

OUTDOORS CLUBS

The motion opposing the townsite was introduced by W. H. Warren of the Victoria Outdoors Club who asked the government to enforce regulations for Class A parks to keep the townsite out of Strathcona.

Council chairman W. A. James told the group the provincial government will get little more than "peanuts" in revenue from the mine.

Did Eagle Kill Little Lamb?

FULFORD — "It was the work of an eagle," says Mrs. Andy Stevens of the Beaver Point area, explaining a hole torn in the head of one of her lambs. If so, it was the first such attack in the area in years, although a cat was seized and eaten by an eagle near Frank Pyatt's home scarcely two years ago.

Mrs. Stevens says sheep owners see the odd eagle hovering above the near-record crop of lambs but keep their flocks close to home to discourage the predators. Ravens and eagles also have been worrisome in recent years.

Unity Comox Aim For '67 Centenary

COURTENAY — Representatives of all parts of the Comox Valley will meet in Comox Feb. 22 to discuss formation of a district-wide committee to co-ordinate 1967 centennial events.

A recent preliminary meeting of centennial representatives agreed unanimously some form of co-ordinating group should be established to plan the 1967 activities.

ALL AGREED

Attending this meeting were representatives of Fanny Bay, Union Bay, Royston, Fallen Alders, Cumberland, Courtenay, Comox, Merville, Black Creek and the permanent married quarters at RCAF Station Comox.

All areas agreed a co-ordinating body would be essential in avoiding clashes of dates, in working together on use of centennial materials and in some joint organization of events.

It was also agreed the group could obtain touring features more easily and a bid will be sent to the B.C. and national centennial committees to have the Comox Valley included in the itinerary of the Confederation Museum train.

PROJECT SOUGHT

The meeting spent some time discussing a worthwhile permanent project for the valley but made no definite decision.

The representatives, who will report back to their local groups before Tuesday, plan to discuss at the meeting in the Comox municipal hall the form and functions of a co-ordinating body.

'Should Be Here'

Chamber Invites Union Presidents

PORT ALBERNI — Presidents of union locals in this area should be invited to attend Chamber meetings.

Ald. Charles Blair of Alberni told the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday.

"Although they don't seem to realize they belong here, they do," he said.

Ald. Blair spoke at the Chamber's decision to send a letter of congratulations to the Port Alberni District Labor Council on its recent formation.

A similar letter will be sent to skip Jack Arnet and Terry Miller of the UBC team which won the B.C. curling championship. Both are from Port Alberni.

Another letter will go to John Gunn-Fowler, the new manager of the National Employment Service office here, inviting him to be a guest at a Chamber meeting.

Guest speakers were tri-university fund drive chairman William Armstrong and University of Victoria development manager Floyd Fairclough, who discussed the drive for $28,000,000.

They disclosed 116 students from the Alberni are registered at Victoria and UBC.

In Cowichan District

Worker Shortage Likely by Spring

DUNCAN — Despite a rough winter for loggers and skilled construction workers, there'll be shortages of both kinds of workers by the spring in the Cowichan district.

That's the word from National Employment Service manager R. S. Robinson in his monthly job and jobless report.

He said the recent heavy snows caused consternation in the construction industry, where contractors were totally unprepared for such adverse conditions.

MINOR LAYOFFS

But a successful winter employment campaign meant there were only minor layoffs of workers employed on outdoor jobs. Several contractors and many homeowners began indoor work at once as the NES emphasized the shortage of skilled labor expected in the spring.

Mr. Robinson said about 850 loggers are still unemployed but a shortage will return when all operations resume.

He pointed to good signs—construction this year of the Duncan courthouse, the new district hospital and an Alexander addition and other school projects.

FEAR DEADLINE

He also noted no municipal winter works projects planned for January because of the snow. And homeowners building under the winter construction programs fear they may be unable to meet the deadline.

The total of registered unemployed in the district rose to 1,418 Jan. 31, compared with 1,324 a month before and 1,151 on the same day last year. The Jan. 31 figure included 1,223 men and 190 women.

Assessment Foe Returns

NANAIMO—R. E. (Doc) Nicoll will appear before the city court of revision in the courthouse at 10 a.m. today to appeal 1965 assessments of his properties on Gabriola and Breakwater islands.

His appearance may have to be adjourned as the B.C. Supreme Court has not yet ruled on Mr. Nicoll's appeal against 1964 assessments on the same properties. And the assessment appeal board also awaits the court ruling before taking any necessary further action on the 1964 appeals.

MILL BAY—The Mill Bay Community League has decided a local committee should be set up to investigate plans for 1967 centennial celebrations and projects. G. J. Pynn of Victoria, the B.C. centennial committee's island representative, has been invited to address a public meeting at a date of his own choosing.

DUNCAN—RCMP are investigating another raid on downtown parking meters. An undetermined sum of money was stolen from 20 meters.

GANGES—RCMP are continuing investigations of two recent break-ins and an attempted burglary. Merchandise and papers were strewn about Mount Bros. store and the tax assessor's office and an attempt was made to open the assessor's safe. The unsuccessful bid to enter was made at Salt Spring Lands Ltd.

TOTINO—An overheated bil stove caught fire Wednesday aboard the troller Phoebe J. tied up at Fisherman's Wharf, but owner Alfred Jensen had things pretty well under control in the few minutes before Totino volunteer firemen arrived. Damage was confined to water and smoke.

ALBERNI—The new health unit here, already under construction, accounted for the city's only building permit in January, officials say. However, its $71,800 value was more than double the $32,294 value of permits issued in January of last year.

FULFORD—Winds of more than 50 miles an hour have been blamed for power failures of about two hours Monday night in Fulford village and Burgoyne Valley. The winds ripped shingles from the roof and broke open the gate at Dromore, and showered off branches on the Grant home up the Isabella Point Road.

PARKSVILLE—The village council has awarded Jenkins Brothers Contracting Ltd. of Parksville the job of laying about 670 feet of six-inch and eight-inch cement-asbestos watermain. Jenkins Brothers submitted the low bid of $464 while Isaac Neden bid $477 and Fouty Brothers $670. The project is to be completed by March.

PORT ALBERNI—Prof. Hamish Nichol, head of the child psychiatry section in the UBC department of psychiatry, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Canadian Mental Health Association's Alberni Valley branch in the Greenwood Hotel Friday.

DUNCAN—Edwin Ross McIntyre of Duncan was sentenced in magistrate's court Wednesday to 10 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was fined $80 on conviction for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

NANAIMO—The city old age pensioners' organization, which will play host to the B.C. Pensioners' convention June 16-18, has re-elected 86-year-old Joe Sutton as president. Other officers are David Holse and W. Hemm, vice-presidents; Mrs. Teresa Mundich, secretary, and Mrs. Austin Tague, treasurer.

DUNCAN—Incumbent vice-president Art Jones, Cowichan district schools superintendent, has been nominated to succeed Wally Stipes as Duncan Rotary president. Other nominees for elections next month are Dr. Ed Cornhill, vice-president; Harold Whitfield, secretary; Neil Gray, treasurer, and directors Wade Gunn, Phil Lemare, Don Baker and Len Hearnsey.

GANGES—The newly-formed Lions' Gulf Islands Pioneer Village Society, which will administer the village for elderly people planned by the Salt Spring Island Lions Club, will meet in Harbour House Hotel Feb. 18 to elect its first slate of officers.

FULFORD—The Social Group No. 2 has re-elected A. House as president and Mrs. J. French as secretary-treasurer. Jake Buitenwerf was elected vice-president at the recent annual meeting.

DUNCAN—The annual meeting of the Cowichan District Hospital Association will be held in the Cowichan agricultural hall at 8 p.m. Feb. 24. One item on the agenda will be the election of a director to represent the city of Duncan.

SOMENOS—Boy Scouts and Cubs will take part in a bottle drive in the Somenos area Saturday.

FULFORD—Mrs. Cliff Lee has been elected president of the Burgoyne United Church women's group. Other officers are Mrs. Edna Fraser, vice-president; Mrs. A. House, secretary; Mrs. F. C. Williams, treasurer, and Mrs. H. B. Dickens, programs.

CAMPBELL RIVER—The fourth annual international affairs program sponsored by the UBC extension department and Campbell River Rotary Club will be held in the secondary school here Feb. 26 and 27. Intricacies and intrigues in the dispute between Russia and China will be discussed by UBC lecturers in Asian, Russian and Slavonic studies. Further information is available from Ray Carpenter, Jim Smith or Ken Antonelli.

Film Man's Wife Projects in a Day

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Mrs. W. R. Salmon had only one day to learn how to operate a movie projector, but made it in time for a meeting of the Mount and Valley Camera Club Monday night in the Shawnigan Lake community centre hall.

Mr. Salmon was unable to show his films because of illness. The three films dealt with national wildlife parks in Africa, a trip down the Nile River and a trip to southern Europe.

The club has decided to accept an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Stan Dakin of Nanaimo to hold the March meeting there. Mr. Dakin was the club's guest last month.

Lots of Races in Ganges

Pancake Derby March 2

GANGES—The eighth annual Ganges pancake derby will be held here Shrove Tuesday, March 2, officials of the sponsoring Salt Spring Island Legion women's auxiliary have announced.

Patterned on the 500-year-old race held annually in Olney, England, and the newer one in Liberal, Kan., the derby here has been adapted to allow entries beyond the housewife class.

Competitors will run in classes ranging in age from pre-school children to grandmothers, with an inter-club race and even an open event for men. Mrs. Alan Hedger is the convener.

New officers of the auxiliary are Mrs. Larry Campbell, president; Mrs. Howard Byron and Mrs. Walter Jameski, vice-presidents; Mrs. F. W. Kirkham, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. H. A. Emerslund, sergeant-at-arms, and executive committee members Mrs. C. W. Archer, Mrs. F. E. Empey, Mrs. Zenon Kroppski, Mrs. E. L. Lumley, Mrs. V. McKay, Mrs. W. H. Saunders and Mrs. A. Young.

The Letter

Bonner Scored For Inaction

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative
Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner came under heavy fire in the legislature Wednesday for his failure to lay criminal charges in the case of the phony Premier Bennett letter.

Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan) said many innocent individuals will remain under suspicion until charges are laid and Mr. Bonner is the only man who can take the necessary action.

"The attorney-general has the case sewed up," said Mr. Harding. "He has the wrong done. The confession of a Vancouver man is in his hands. The letter bearing the handwritten signature is at hand."

WITHIN CODE

The case clearly fell within the Criminal Code and provincial jurisdiction, he said.

"I appreciate the interest and sincerity of the member," said Mr. Bonner.

"If I'm called upon to prosecute the case, however, the possibility of seeing that there is a fair trial is not being enhanced by continuation of this discussion at this time."

GOVERNMENT CLEAR

Mr. Harding stressed there were no allegations of wrongdoing on the part of the government in connection with the letter sent to an aide of Prime Minister Pearson on the premier's stationery and purporting to have been signed by W. A. C. Bennett.

The letter is presumed to have been sent in support of millionaire promoter Harry Stonehill's unsuccessful application for landed immigrant status in Canada.

'DISGRACEFUL'

Mr. Harding said the "forged signature of the premier is a disgraceful act" when used in an attempt to influence federal immigration laws.

"No individual, regardless of his position or party, must ever be permitted to curry favor in this fashion. No one must ever."

Communists Picket Their Own Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Communist picketed Communist Wednesday.

Pickets from the Progressive Workers' Movement and the Canada-China Friendship Society paraded past the offices of the Pacific Tribune in protest against the weekly newspaper's refusal to publish an advertisement of a public meeting.

In a statement, the newspaper said a speaker to be featured at the meeting "invariably puts forward the Peking line of division and disruption."

Jacques and Gendarme on run

He Ran for Life— But Did He Win?

DOMPIERRE-LES-ÉGLISES, France—Jacques Rossignol literally ran for his life here Tuesday—and doesn't know yet whether he won.

Rossignol has pleaded innocent of complicity in the murder of garage owner Raymond Vignaud last Dec. 18.

Investigation fixed the time of death at 7:30 p.m., but Rossignol said when he and two others were arrested that he was in Montmorillon, 32 miles away, at the time.

One defendant said he drove Rossignol to Montmorillon, and left him to go 800 yards on foot to the home of a witness who saw him at 7:55 p.m.

In a re-enactment, a car drove between the two towns in 22 minutes, 15 seconds. Then Rossignol, roped and paced by a policeman, ran the 800 yards in four minutes.

He said this proved his innocence but a magistrate demurred, saying the slaying perhaps occurred 10 minutes before 7:30 p.m.—which would ruin Rossignol's alibi.

A decision is awaited.

LOADED BOMBERS HEADING NORTH

BULLETIN

DA NANG (Reuters)—About 28 South Vietnamese Skyraider fighter-bombers took off from here today followed shortly by 20 U.S. jet fighters heading north and fully loaded with bombs.

(From AP, Reuters, UPI)

Communist guerrillas attempted an amphibious assault on the port town of Qui Nhon today only hours after Viet Cong suicide squads blew up a U.S. Army barracks housing at least 40 Americans. It was feared that as many as 26 Americans may have died in the blast.

The new attack came as latest figures in the barracks explosion listed three Americans known dead, 17 wounded and 20 to 25 missing.

The attacking guerrillas today, aboard 30 armed junks, were driven back by fire from American helicopters as the Viet Cong tried to swarm ashore less than 300 yards from the destroyed barge.

Col. Theodore Matlack, commander of American forces in Qui Nhon, said the Viet Cong apparently tried to use a human shield of 400 Vietnamese civilians in order to get onto the beach.

He said his helicopters hovered overhead while artillerymen fired rounds across the path of the junks in an effort to stop them.

Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, and U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor went to Saigon Airport to see off a group of 150 American women and children being evacuated under President Johnson's order for withdrawal of dependents from the country.

There were developments on other fronts as Radio Hanoi, in the North Viet Nam capital, urged the guerrillas in South Viet Nam to "strike hard, very hard, at the enemy on all battlefields."

● About 600 South Vietnamese government troops were wiped out in the northeast Binh Dinh Mountains in one of the worst defeats of the war.

● Four U.S. Army advisers were missing after a Viet Cong band attacked a town 80 miles north of Saigon.

● The roll of American combat dead rose to 268 with the killing of a helicopter crewman and the death of a captain wounded Monday.

Qui Nhon, scene of the barracks bombing, is 80 miles east of Pleiku, where a Viet Cong attack on U.S. installations Sunday touched off retaliatory strikes by U.S. and South Vietnamese war planes at targets in North Viet Nam.

There was prompt world reaction to latest developments in South Viet Nam.

B.C. Fraud Case

Constable Sent to Jail

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An RCMP constable was sentenced here Wednesday to two months in jail after he pleaded guilty to fraud in the handling of meal accounts for prisoners at the jail here.

Const. A. G. Kemp, 35, was one of four men — two other RCMP constables and a restaurant owner — charged with fraud.

POSTED BOND — The restaurant owner, Low Kut Sing, 69, also pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence. Magistrate Harvey Jessop ordered Low released after he posted a $500 peace bond.

A stay of proceedings was ordered for Const. W. L. Giesbrecht, 27, who is in a Vancouver hospital with a serious head wound.

GRAVELY WOUNDED — Prosecutor Ernest Alexander of Vancouver told the court the constable is so gravely wounded he may "never be fit to conduct his affairs."

The constable's wife found him unconscious with a bullet wound in the head in their Grand Forks, B.C., home last August.

AWAITS LAWYER — Const. W. S. Austin, 26, the fourth man charged, was granted an adjournment to Feb. 26 pending the arrival of his lawyer.

Mr. Alexander said between April 1963 and July 1964 there was an over-payment in the meal accounts to Low's Grand Cafe from the Prince Rupert jail of $3,468.

Language Protest Toll 21

Student Rioters in India Burn Police to Death

MADRAS (UPI) — Two police inspectors were burned to death and at least 19 other persons killed Wednesday in student riots protesting the use of Hindi as India's national language. Hundreds were injured in the mob action in Madras state. Ten students were killed by police bullets in the Coimbatore district when they stormed a textile mill.

Indian Army units were ordered into four areas to halt the rampaging students. Hindi, the language of North Central India, was made the national tongue.

Frenzied students attacked the two policemen in Coimbatore, 350 miles southwest of here, stoning and then setting them afire as they lay by the roadside. The two victims became human torches.

There was full-scale rioting in five cities of Madras state.

Four persons were killed in Tiruppur, about 300 miles southwest of Madras. Two students succumbed at the town of Tirunelveli. The total number of wounded was not known but reports indicated there were many casualties in the fighting between rioters and club and pistol-carrying police.

About 5,000 students tried to storm the police station at Tirunelveli. The police opened fire when they attempted to steal firearms.

During the fighting at Tiruppur, riot participants cut communication lines between that city and Madras.

Dorion Witness Recalled

Calls 'Forgotten'

OTTAWA (CP) — Testimony about a telephone call from the Chateau Laurier Hotel room of self-described Liberal organizer Guy Masson to the number of a security agency of the defence department was given to the Dorion inquiry Wednesday.

Herman Falls, manager of the Chateau, said hotel records show that a call was made July 14 at 11:57 a.m. from Masson's room to federal government number 99-26261.

This is the number listed since 1962 in the defence department telephone directory for the security and administration branch of the RCAF directorate of air intelligence.

A reporter's call to the number Wednesday brought the reply "air intelligence."

Masson, recalled to the witness box after an interval of three weeks, was not asked by any counsel to say whether he had made the call himself or to explain it.

Mr. Falls testified that the call to 99-26261 was followed immediately by one to 99-23234, the unlisted parliamentary number used by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

That Was No Dream

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "I dreamed my heart stopped," William O. Varner told the doctor.

The doctor replied: "I'm not sure it was a dream."

And Varner, 32, then learned his heart had stopped.

"He walked in and dropped dead," said Richard Minor, assistant administrator of Good Samaritan Hospital.

"The staff brought him back to life."

He is on the way to recovery.

To Realize Potential

Court Gives 'Genius' Chance

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Carson, 27, described in court as "a genius," won a chance to realize his potential Wednesday when a charge against him of being a habitual criminal was dismissed.

Malcolm Black, artistic director of the playhouse company of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, testified:

"He is, in my opinion, a genius. One day he may become one of the most brilliant writers in Canada."

Carson, serving a two-year sentence for bad-check of fences, admitted to 85 charges during the last 10 years, most of them for passing bad checks.

Mr. Black said he had seen seven plays and a number of sketches produced by Carson in prison and that it was his intention to have Carson join his company as an apprentice playwright when he leaves prison.

Two of Carson's paintings were exhibited in court.

Magistrate Cyril White ruled:

"This offender has something to offer to society and it would be tragic if this potential is not realized."

Purity His Pledge

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Fournier pledged Wednesday night that the new Quebec section of the federal Liberal party will be "above moral reproach."

"Personally, I shall tolerate no form of corruption or influence-peddling whatever," he said in a speech to the Reform Club.

"The Quebec section of the Liberal Federation of Canada will mirror the image of a party we are all proud of—an honest party for honest citizens."
